

P.I. Livestock Show Billed Oct. 3-11th

PORTLAND—One hundred and thirty-seven livestock breeders from eight western states and Canada have flooded the Pacific International Livestock Exposition officers in Portland with advance requests for stalls and pens. This is so far ahead of the years previous that a new record is in the making this far in advance of the show according to Walter Holt, manager of the exposition which is scheduled for October 3 to 11.

A warning to old friends and exhibitors of the PI that stall space will become very scarce if the present high tide of demand continues was issued by Holt. He urged that all who intend to show send in word at once concerning their interests to avoid disappointment.

Dairy cattle exhibitors led the field with notices of intent to show more than 600 head. This does not include dual purpose cattle which totaled 128.

Thirty-three cattle breeders have written in stating intent to compete this October with 300 blue blood listed by the exposition staff for shipment to Portland.

Notices began to arrive fully two months earlier than previous years due to new methods of exhibitors contacts. This was an unusual condition and indicated increased interest.

The largest number of requests came from California breeders. The furthest distance heard from were inquiries concerning two brown Swiss herds in Minnesota and Nevada. Other states heard from included Utah, Idaho, Washington, Montana, Oregon and British Columbia.

"The outlook is optimistic to fill every stall in the huge 11-acre building of P. I." Walter Holt, manager, stated this week. "It is apparent already that even the addition facilities of the stock-yards adjacent to our barns will be taxed to provide pens for carloads of fat animals and feeders." *
