

Sense And Some NONSENSE -

By Dewey

Whether it is an indication of forthcoming power, or not, the United Nations organization did bring about the stop of the Dutch-Indonesian war, raging a couple of weeks in the East Indies. Such may, or may not, be the forerunner of what the world can look forward to in way of world union. Perhaps it's wishful thinking, but nevertheless it is hopeful.

Rotary International, you may believe this or not, has done so much toward bringing about the potential power the United Nations might possess. Through this organization, all nations, except Russia, Japan, Germany and Spain, aired their differences at Rotary International conventions held each year. Rotary Magazine often carries articles of international interest, written by men of foreign countries.

tional interest is the Rotary International "Foundation," a $2,000,000 fund set up for exchange of students of various countries with those of the United States. This fund, raised annually by various means, will be self-perpetuating after a few years, and will accommodate some 2000 students over the world.

Permitted to study in America, and learn American methods, students of foreign lands will go hence and spread the democratic way of life. While slow in getting results, this plan certainly will be unquestionable, once in full action.

It isn't publicly known but the recent war with Japan was postponed about 20 years because of two Japanese Exchange students who attended a college in Indiana and who went back to their land to become foreign ministers. It was through their efforts, before their deaths, that a peaceful relation was maintained with the United States. It was following their deaths that the war lords of Japan siezed power.

It is my firm opinion that much of the dilemma in Europe might be solved today by this method — perhaps quicker and more effectively than by monetary aid. For instance, a few Germans could be brought to our agricultural schools, and there taught the ways of American agriculture, and sent home to supervise agrarian practices.

Finnish students might be given schooling in American ways of engineering and sent home to help develop that country which has little industry except lumbering, fishing and farming. It would at least help the country to help itself.

If mammoth loans are to be made to foreign countries, certainly it is no more than good business methods to see that all these are properly administrated through competent and well-educated men. The world recognizes the superiority of America's industrial and educational standards. Thus my belief America could aid the world better by this method.

Quite a number of pictures were taken of the July 4 Lily Parade, and some of these will be shown next week at the Pine Cone, it was announced by Norris Kemp, owner. Colored slides, taken by Thor Ask, were shown to Rotary club a week ago, and depict a great event, if such is properly carried out in years to come.

The Azalea Festival, under R. S. Perkins, has announced that full co-operation will be put out on the part of that association toward a bigger lily week in this area next year. In answer to a lot of questions why the event wasn't given more national publicity this year may be answered in a short sentence: "No one had any idea that the event would be as large as it was." It surprised even the lily growers association, sponsors of the event.

Fred Moore, in charge of floats for the parade, told me that he had 40 registrations, but he had no idea that the parade would be one-fourth as large as it did turn out to be.

Next year, if predictions today are carried out, the size may be four times the size of this year's parade—something really to be reckoned with. Next year may decide the national outlook for the lilies through just that feature alone.

We are sometimes asked "why did God allow temptation to come to man." The reason was: He wanted man to choose for himself his way of life. If God had not allowed men to go wrong, then they would not have been free will agents, just machines.

What mother would rather have a mechanical doll than a real flesh, thinking baby? It is true that the mechanical doll would be less bother—could put it aside when she became tired of play. However, a mechanical doll could not say: "Mama, I love you."

"Spirit" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, August 10.

The Golden Text is "Teach me to do thy will; for thou art my God: thy spirit is good; lead me into the land of uprightness" (Ps. 143:10).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Blessed are the poor in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven" (Matt. 5:3), together with the following correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook: "Science and Health with Key to the Scripture," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Emerge gently from matter into Spirit. Think not to thwart the spiritual ultimate of all things, but come naturally into Spirit through better health and morals and as the result of spiritual growth" (page 485).
