I WRITE

As I See It

By Barton W. Marsh

"The End Of The World" is a topic to which secular publication, in the past have given but scant consideration. The September 1 issue of "Time" Magazine frankly and clearly discusses this mighty subject.

Since the development of the atomic bomb, theologians have been studying the Book of Revelation, and now as never before, seem willing and even eager to discuss the eminent possibility of this great event.

The writer of this column has long been identified with a religious organization that for more than 100 years has been proclaiming a message throughout the world, based upon Revelation 14th chapter that portrays a period of judgment followed by the second coming of Jesus Christ in the clouds of heaven. We believe that the time is very near when catastrophic changes are to occur upon this earth, which will entirely change the state of human existence as we now know it, and will also transform the appearance and condition of the earth which we now exist. We who believe these things, are not surprised, but find confirmation in our hope, as we witness secular journals of such prominence as "Time," giving its valuable space for discussion of this topic.

There is a growing fear gnawing at the very heart of the world, that man now has in his possession, the forces by which the race could be largely, if not entirely, exterminated, and the earth itself rendered uninhabitable. These are strange, but terrible problems for man to face and ponder. It is a sad awakening, when man realizes the fact that he has reasoned and worked himself into a condition that forbodes destruction before which he stands helpless and utterly unable to extricate himself.

I quote from the "Time" article which is headed: "The End of the World:"

"It seems to me that there is a tremendous difference caused by the fact that it is now man who threatens to undo the history ordained by God—in Biblical prophecy and apocalypse it is God who in one of his mighty acts brings history to an end. Now it is man who is blatant self-assertion, in fear-nourished pride, threatened to take his destiny into his own hands and hurl himself to destruction. This is the miserable arrogance of the creature who never learned to serve his Creator, the final blasphemy of man who thought that he could be God."

With the above statement we heartily agree. With all his arrogance and blasphemy, man is unable to bring the end of the world. He may and will destroy the works that he, through the centuries, has so laboriously constructed. He may and will lay waste the cities of earth, and drive millions into its caves and dens, and cause other millions to wander as vagabonds upon earth's ruined surface, but he cannot destroy the earth itself. He cannot bring down the mountains, nor stop the flow of rivers. God alone can do this, and we are in the time. I do not mention the hour, the day or the year which is will occur, for this is in God's hands alone. (Read the 13th chapter of Mark in this connection). The time is near at hand, and man is greatly hastening the fateful day.

There is no human remedy for the ills that have stricken the world. God alone has the healing medicine that will cure the ills of mankind. If you, I or anyone are unwilling to have Him apply his healing medicine to our sin-sick heart, or such there is nothing, but to go down in the ruin that impends all about us. This is no time for scoffing, no time for idle thinking or reasoning. It is a time for every human being to set his house in order, for a storm relentless in its fury is approaching and is soon to break upon the world.

Next week we hope to discuss some of the outstanding conditions that he Bible reveals will prevail on the earth at the time of the end of the world.
