

Forest Supervisor Lays Speaker

Shell Obye, supervisor of the National Forest, Grants, himself a Rotarian, was at the noon luncheon, one of the local club, and explained how the forest service planned its work regarding roads, and sale of national forest land.

Explaining why the re-survey had been made up of the upper Chetco bridge, demand for timber governs forest service policy of build-roads," he told the club. "In case of this area, the new had holdings in the upper region, and with an eye to permanence, the forest was to locate permanent in that direction.

The forest service divides its into 'working circles,' which the Siskiyou is made up of, one of which is the area part of the state. A work- circle is given the patronage to the urgency of de- on timber. As yet this circle hasn't shown ur- to demand more money on based on a sustained yield, Brookings-Harbor circle can supply yearly 10-15 million ft. of timber forever. However, there is quantities of local timber that is owned by individuals which will last for a number of years.

"We are thankful," Mr. Obye continued: "because we have only had only seven fires in the Siskiyou forest this year. None of these were allowed to reach any proportions where actual damage was done. You must remember that there still is danger for bad forest fires. Records show that two or three bad ones started, ironically on Sept. 26. We hope for that 'big fall rain.'"

H. L. Abramson, of Idaho Falls, Idaho, Rotarian in his home city, was a visitor, and told something of his business, canvas products manufacturing. He is visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Hogan, old friends of that area.
