

ing Azalea Row
Following Finger Writes—
 The news of garden shows in the country, we found the theme of the annual flower show of the Douglas Garden Club, Long Island—creative flower arrangements on lines from the poem brought to mind—wonder garden clubber, Mae Powell grows many varieties of flowers—Full many a flower to blush unseen, waste its sweetness on the air.
 Other garden clubbers, illustrating their favorite verse, would be fun as well as stimulating to the imagination and give added interest to the No. 7, as stated in the yearbook, that is—classes of flower arrangements conducted throughout the year. Certain theme of Omar Khayyam have been a difficult one.

officers, the chairmen and co-chairmen to tea at Vincent's Azalea Room, October 7. The time is 2 o'clock.
STANDARD!
 Lack of time, busy with preparations for her daughter's entrance to Stanford, and the necessity of making the trip with Nancy to Palo Alto, Mrs. Rice asks that this newspaper notice (with her apologies) be considered as covering the invitational 'amentities.' She urges all of us to attend and with problems and questions, if any, listed.
But No Swords Drawn—
 From the realm of politics (but not on politics will he speak) comes our next speaker, Senator William Walsh who will talk to us on Roadside Beautification, at the Oct. 14 meeting of the club. The time 2 o'clock STANDARD.
 Included in the program will be the showing of colored slides of "Scenic Views of Oregon" courtesy of Mr. Lloyd Moss. The hostesses under the chairmanship of Mrs. Lloyd Harbin, will be Mrs. Val Mendenhall, Mrs. Stanley Paterson, Mrs. Joe Massett, Mrs. Lola Keehnel, and Miss Marie Hempel.
Operation Talkie Talkie
 Suggested to the Azalea Garden club yearbook committee, (but not seriously) the following rhyme without reason illustrated by a telephone pole with no wires attached, for a page, covering an extra-curricular project, for better telephone service in the district. The name "Project of the Big and Useless Stick."
LAMENT
 Come, Draw up chairs and let us discourse
 On the evils of motors over buggy and horse
 Perhaps, better place to wrinkle our brows
 The dark wooded shade of our green myrtle boughs.
 Now whisper, and softly, can anyone tell
 Did any such live—Alexander Graham Bell?
 The madness of ages would have us believe
 We could sit miles apart and a message receive.
 Now ere faces get set in a decorous frowning
 Let us try to believe it may only be clowning—
 But let us pry into this secret, a smidgen—
 Fifty square miles and the Carrier Pigeon.
More dignity in the future!

"Homemakers"

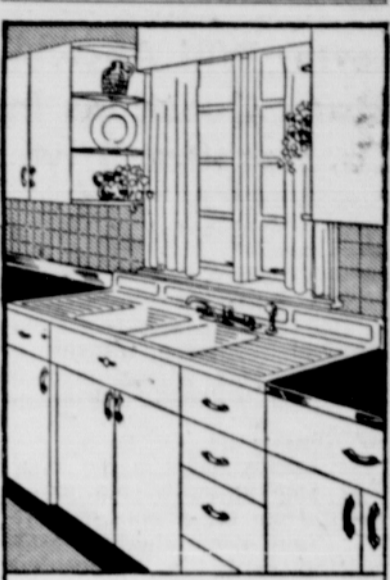

By ALDENE N. ROBERTS
Home Demonstration Agent

HELLO, THERE:
 October will mark the beginning of Home Extension unit meetings. I am eager to see all of you who I have missed seeing this summer. The first meeting will be a busy one with yearbooks to pass out to members, and a revision of the mailing list, besides a demonstration on "Color in the Home." There will be a kit from the state college, including samples of drapery materials—of rugs, pictures, slip cover material and other things which one can use to add color to the home. I think you'll like this meeting and every homemaker is invited to attend the meeting in her community. Here is the schedule:
 Port Orford, Oct. 1, 1:30 PSI, at American Legion hall.
 Young Mothers, Oct. 4, 7:30 at Ann Porisch's place, Gold Beach.
 Sixes, Oct. 15, 1:30 at home of Mrs. Mary Woodruff.
 Gold Beach, Oct. 19, 1:30 at Community hall.
 Chetco, Oct. 20, 1:30 at the Grange Hall.
 Ophir, Oct. 22, 10:30 at the home of Mabel Adams.
 Pistol River, Oct. 27, 1:30 at the school house.
 Langlois, Oct. 28, 1:30 at the home of Stella Slocum.

the dried figs and prunes should first be soaked in water from 10 to 20 minutes, then should be ground or chopped coarsely. The dried apples should first be soaked in water 20 minutes, and then ground finely with raisins. The celery is simply diced and salted before it is blended with peanut butter.

In the case of carrots, the vegetable is first washed and scraped and then ground fine with raisins, blended with peanut butter (to which a little butter or fortified margarine has been added if it isn't moist enough) and then spread on the bread.

School luncheons are not the only spot for peanut butter. Peanut butter cookies are a special delight to many people. And—there is a variety of other dishes—such as baked apples with peanut butter topping, stuffed sweet potatoes with peanut butter, peanut butter sauce for vegetables, peanut butter biscuits, muffins, bread, griddle cakes and peanut butter salad dressing.

 Interior work is being held up for want of plumbing at the Ole Ask home, back of the Brookings Market. The wiring was completed last week.

Since some of the meetings are a month away, why not mark the calendar right now with a red circle around the date your unit will have its meeting. Bring your neighbors and friends, too.
 With the children back in the schools, consumers will be looking for something tasty and nourishing to go into those school lunch sandwiches. How about peanut butter? Peanut butter and enriched bread together provide the growing child with food energy (calories), minerals, thiamin, riboflavin, and niacin. Peanut butter provides a generous amount of inexpensive protein, which is otherwise found mainly in foods which are short in supply and considerably higher in price. Furthermore, it is easy to keep, and it blends particularly well in sandwiches in combination with jellies, chopped vegetables, dried fruits or meat left-overs.
 Some sandwich spread variations include such fillings as peanut butter, carrot, and raisin, peanut butter and celery; peanut butter, carrot, cabbage, and raisins; peanut butter, dried apple, and raisin; peanut butter and prune, peanut butter and fig, and a number of others.

Motels Modern, Will Be 'Magnet'

Improvements to motels of this area cannot go without mention because they have been brought up to compare with any between Portland and the Bay region.

Take for instance the Four Biddles Motel, near Winchuck Village, is said to be the ultra-modern type, comparable to any in the United States for conveniences and comforts.

Sunset Cottages, under the ownership of the McAdams, have been completely remodeled, including electric heat, and all utilities. Next year, it is planned, these cottages will be further improved by a stucco job.

Oil heating system, formerly used, has been discarded, and there are ranges in every cabin, together with all modern comforts.
