

GOOD BUSINESS

Governor Douglas McKay has confidence in the present legislature.

He believes it will be able to solve the complex financial enigma of the state in a business-like manner.

His inaugural message could be his last advice to this legislature. He believes people who are on the job should be left alone. The message was free from declamatory dictum, demarcations and weight throwing. It focused a clear light on his character and policies. It is evident he bases his policies on the intended functions of the three departments of state, legislative, executive and judicial, without overlapping or jurisdiction.

Those who have served in the legislature with the governor (64 per cent of the members of the present session have) and those who have worked with him in his many state-wide and hometown activities know he will keep his powder dry, welcome conferences and decline to lobby.

BRIEF OF BILLS

Bills of signal interest introduced during the first week of the present session of legislature would—

Repeal withholding of income tax from wages and salaries by employer.

Permit parents' names to appear on child's birth certificate without court action.

Repeal community property law.

Regulate and license fortune telling.

Remove re-forestation lands from tax rolls.

Provide for state junior college in Multnomah county.

Create emergency fund for the state forestry department.

Provide for safe operation of school buses.

Provide permanent license plates and numbers for motor vehicles.

Stagger date for issuing license plates for motor vehicles (except trucks).

Increase fee from 50c to $2 for certified copies of birth certificates.

Provide for issuance of bonds to finance reforestation of state lands, implementing law passed by people.

RESOLUTIONS

To provide for election of lieutenant governor (two resolutions introduced).

To provide for joint committee to investigate housing and create interim committee to report.

To provide for use of senate and house chambers for 31st annual American Legion convention.

To provide for examination of bills as to form before introduction.

MEMORIALS

To petition congress to enact legislation for holding advisory polls.

Urging congress to proceed with flood control and power development in Northwest.

'48 PAYROLLS HIGH

A surprising bright rift appeared in unemployment clouds this week when the Oregon state unemployment commissioners disclosed that 1948 payrolls exceeded $340,000,000 and were $75,000,000 over the previous year. Lumbering shutdowns and seasonal slowdowns during November and December were expected to break the gains made during the first three-quarters of the year.

Although the state unemployment commission paid $7,744,168 to unemployed workers in 1948, the reserve fund of the department was increased up to $84,624,264 for an all-time high. This was a gain of $8,096,773 over 1947. Contributions from all employers totaled $14,186,914.

LEGISLATIVE SHORTS

The booby trap all legislators fear most is the people's referendum of any allocation of income tax surpluses that do not relieve property taxes. The $50-a-month minimum pensions for the next two years will require $2,750,000 of additional funds. The legislature and taxpayers could use a new branch of state government—a department of apprehension. Some kind of an all-time record was broken by the legislature this week when a public hearing was called for the second Wednesday of the session.

Local News Items

August Johnson broke ground last Thursday for erection of a new home on the lot adjacent to his home, purchased last fall of Archie Hendricks. The foundation was completed Saturday.

Zada's Beauty Shop will be closed Feb. 1 to 7, inclusive, for repair and re-decorating, Miss McIndoe told the Pilot, Monday. An announcement appears elsewhere in this issue.

A three-foot concrete sidewalk is being installed by August Johnson, from his house to the street, and along the street, in front of the property, purchased last fall from Archie Hendricks.

Mrs. Henry Celli and daughter returned to Pocatello, Ida., Jan. 14, after two weeks spent visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Murry.
