

Mary Sue Tierce Is Junior Librarian

Mary Sue Tierce has been asked by the library board of Harbor Community club to serve as junior librarian for Chetco Community Library. She was chosen for her fine reading background of good books, her sunny disposition and her contagious enthusiasm for a good book.

Boys and girls have confidence in her judgment and respect her gift for picking out the good ones. Mary Sue is in the seventh grade, a Girl Scout and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Tierce.

To celebrate this happy addition to the library staff three exciting new 1948 books have been placed on the junior shelf. They are really outstanding for the older boys and girls:

"White Boots," by Helen Watson, is an appealing tale of a Boston terrier lost in Puerto Rico, where he takes part in a cock-fight, a hurricane, and an important horse race. If you've enjoyed "Black Stallion" you'll welcome "The Island Stallion," by Walter Farley. This is a new series about Steve Duncan and a new horse, "Flame," who have thrilling adventure in discovering a "lost world."

And last, but certainly not the least, is another adventure story, perhaps the most exciting of the three. It's a boy's mystery novel with its setting in the northern coast of California, and Alfred Powers has called this thriller "Prisoners of the Redwoods."

Bronze Medal Awarded Wm. F. Joy For Bravery

It was heard on a news broadcast Friday evening over KIEM that William F. Joy of Crescent City received the bronze medal for heroic action. In 1947 he saved a 60-year-old man from death by drowning when the old man was washed off the jetty.

Christian Science Lecture Attracts

Ralph E. Wagers, C. S. B., of Chicago, who was brought here by the local Christian Science society last Thursday to the Odd Fellows hall, attracted a large crowd to his lecture: "Christian Science: The Promised Comforter."

A resume of the text of his lecture may be seen on another page of this issue.

School Notes

Kenneth Fielder, Joy Gott, Melody Brimm, Larry Myers gave oral reports on vultures. These were interesting.

The fifth grade is studying the Andes mountains in geography.

Gary Kahler moved away. We made a house like those of the Congo region in Africa.—Virginia Akers, reporter.

Girl Scout News

Troop 1 of Girls Scouts followed a trail through the park, blazed by Troop 2, last Thursday. We surely had fun. At the end of the trail we had refreshments. We meet again this Thursday, after school at the home of Mrs. Roy Brimm.—Barbara Gould, reporter.

County Lags In Dimes Campaign

GOLD BEACH—Returns, although far from complete, indicate that Curry county contribution will fall far below the amount donated during the past two years, said John Porisch, county chairman. Brookings and Harbor seem to be the only spots to make their quota.

The campaign, which was to have closed last Saturday, will be extended for another week at least. (Report of Brookings and Harbor may be seen elsewhere in this issue).

Driving Tips Given In "Comical Way"

Rear-end collisions are usually hardest on the follower. Give yourself plenty of room to stop when following another car.

Heads up at the curb—it's the pedestrian's danger line.

Look out for children—give them a brake.

Staying alive in today's traffic is as simple as ABC. Always Be Careful!

Are your feet killing you? They might, if you're careless in traffic.

Drivers—train your mind to mind the trains.

Always get out of your cab from the curb side. The traffic is is sometimes sui-cide.

Drive slow in train, sleet, or snow.

The fellow who drives through stops signs and red lights might get pinched for it—and then again, he might not live long enough.

Being on the wrong side of the road is a sure way to a short life. The centerline is your danger line.

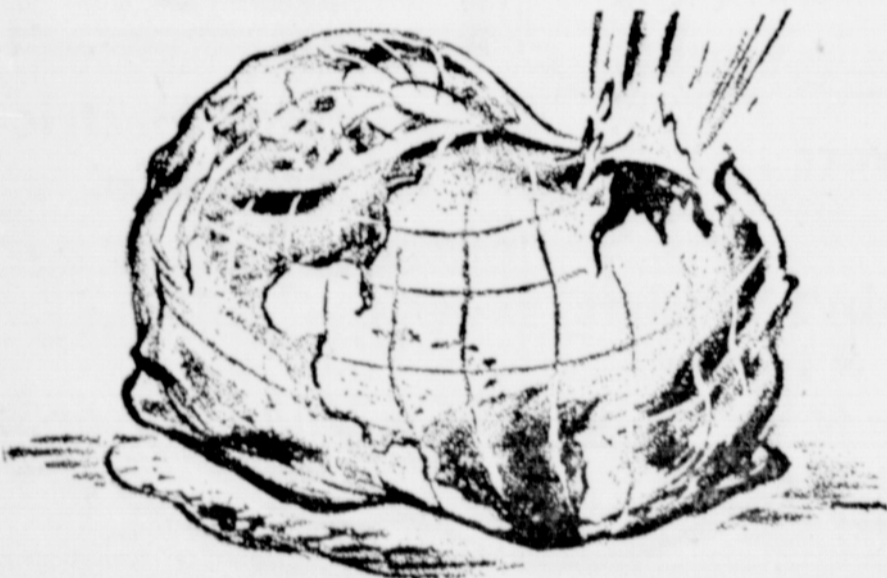

Nobody wins an argument in traffic.

Cars and roads often come together at the same place. Slow down and be alert at intersections.

More than one-third of Oregon traffic accidents occur on slippery pavements. Let's quit skidding ourselves.

The best way to reduce accidents is to reduce speed.

An open road doesn't mean you have to open up.
