At the second annual birthday party of Brookings Rotary club, held Tuesday evening instead of noon, was given over to Coos Bay-North Bend club, sponsors of the local group. Five members of the Coos Bay club were present to bring the program.

Going on the assumption that democracy is always safe as long as the people of the democracy have a sense of humor, Gene Gray read a paper written by Ralph T. Moore, on the topic of "Humor."

Prefacing the paper was an explanation of the types of humor, and the occasions each can be used effectively. No walk of life escaped in this fun-program, as butcher, baker and candlestick maker came in for his share of the stories.

Earl Littrel, who was president of the Coos Bay club at the time organization work was carried on here, told of how the Coos Bay club bragged to the outside world about the Brookings club, pointing with pride to local achievements.

Visitors from Brighton, Colo., Concord, Calif., and San Diego, Calif., sat in on the affair, and left with the statement that they never before had had the same amount of fun in one evening.

Along Azalea Row

The spotlight that will be on the Brookings and Harbor area in the next few weeks seems to be getting stronger and brighter as we come into Lily Blossom Time in this year of 1949. The excellent job of publicity done jointly by Dewey Akers and by Ralph Vincent promises much. Commander Scott will be on the air this coming Sunday morning. It is expected that he will "focus" on this area during his program, and will mention our Lily Blossom Time, ahead.

The opening day of Lily Blossom Time is of special interest to the Azalea Garden club members because this day, Saturday, July 2, carries the program of the dedication ceremonies of Loeb State Park. This dedication will be the result of state-wide effort combined with those of the Oregon Federation of Garden Clubs (including our own). And because this concentration of effort reflects credit to us here and must be considered of great community benefit, it is expected that the entire community will be well represented at this opening event of Lily Blossom Time. The time—Between 2:30 and 3:00 p. m. at Loeb State Park about seven miles up the banks of the Chetco river—the north bank road.

Azalea Garden Club will be the hosts to all visiting delegates, from the State Federation of Garden Clubs, the State Forestry, to all other organizations and individual personages whose efforts have helped to bring this about as well as to the speakers and their families.

That good organizer of ours, Lillian Weideman, is in charge of pot luck picnic arrangements at the grove. The time set for this is one o'clock, at the Grove, Saturday. The Lily Blossom Time committee and chamber of commerce will serve all coffee at the grove and will include in this service the needs of the community who come to the grove equipped with their own pot luck picnic baskets. A special invitation to the queen and her court has been sent by our club president, Mrs. Erma Rice.

Note to garden club members from Lillian Weideman: We do not know how many guests we'll have so bring some extra cutlery and take this into account while organizing the contents of your picnic basket.

Note from Mrs. Howard James, Mrs. Rose Hubbard and Mrs. Ray Struebing in charge of the Lily Blossom float for the parade on July 4 for the garden club: "We are proceeding in secret—but still proceeding." Those who can help and keep our secret are most welcome.
