By Harris Ellsworth, M. C.

The U. S. State Department recently issued an un-indexed volume of 1054 pages entitled "United States Relations with China." This document is called a "white paper." Why it is called that I do not know—from my reading of it the color of it might more properly be called pink. Certainly all those in the state department who participated in the China blunders should be blushing with shame now that their story is in print—even the most of it is in very fine print.

The fall of China to Russian-controlled communists is felt more keenly by those of us who live on the west coast than by easterners. The eyes of the east are on Europe. We recall very well how close the Pacific coast was to the Pacific war zone. We recall most vividly that Japanese shells and bombs actually landed and exploded on our coast.

When I read the story of the shameful mismanagement of our policy in China, and particularly when I read the admission of Secretary of State Acheson that we have no more policy toward Asia in the future than a "wait and see how it comes out" attitude, I felt it necessary to speak out on the subject on the floor of the house of representatives. My speech was a long one—too long to outline here. (Condensed form appears on page one).

Beginning Thursday, the 25th, the house is expected to recess for about two weeks over Labor Day. During this period it is expected the senate will catch up so that following the recess both houses can complete the unfinished business of the session and adjourn. My present plan is to take the family out to our home in Roseburg, spend a week or more in a forest camp on the Umpqua, and then return to Washington for the remainder of the session. Mrs. Ellsworth and Jane will stay in Oregon. After the session adjourns which should be around the first of October, I expect to spend the months of October, November and most of December in Oregon visiting the seven counties of our fourth congressional district.

All plans of this sort are subject to change without notice. The situation here, as this is written, is very confused and uncertain. But the above outlines what we hope to do.

I have not fully checked the record but I believe the regular appropriation bills are slower reaching completion in this congress than ever before in history.

Interior department, army civil functions (rivers and harbors and flood control), department of defense and at least one deficiency bill have not yet been finally acted upon by both houses.

There was quite a flurry of excitement here in Washington when the house, on August 15, at the expiration of a continuing resolution, refused to pass another continuing resolution. The result of the house action was that for a day or two several departments had no money with which to operate. The reason the house took such drastic action was that the appropriations committee brought in a resolution to continue the present rate of department expenditures indefinitely—that is, without a date stated in the resolution. In a way it was a blank check. When the house, by a roll-call vote, refused to go along with any such proposal a new resolution was brought in setting the deadline date at Sept. 15. This was quickly approved by both house and senate.
