

SPORTSMEN'S COLUMN

The fishing situation remained status quo during the week. Most of the salmon were taken by the commercial fishermen and the sportsmen who were taken outside with deep sea equipment.

Elmer Parker and Art Guthrie conducting parties were reported catching seven and nine salmon on two days. Many tourists are buying tackle and taking a whirl at one or other type of fishing. On Monday Warren Longworthy and his party had a lot of fun and good going with bottom fish. Ben Turner took Chuck Low, John Ginther and Lloyd Moss for a session at the grab bag at the bottom of the sea. A good natured race was on to see who could pull up the oddest looking fish. The ocean yielded a good collection of ugly ducklings including ling, rock and China cod, red and black snapper and kelp trout. Poor John was good enough sport not to complain at what happened to him but he did claim that he had heaved up things he never ate.

Virg Goldsberry reports a rash of rod building in the community. A lot of Calcutta cane has been obtained and other material to be fashioned into rods of their own and/or copied designs by prospective Isaac Waltons who are looking forward to a lot of fun in the future.

Well, the Rod and Gun club boat went to the fair to see and be seen and remained in the vicinity to be used. Great disappointment was experienced by many who were sure lady luck was going to smile on them, and there is no consolation in the thought that you came so close to getting it that your ticket slipped through the little girl's fingers as she pulled out Jo Ann Moore's ticket instead. Crescent City had all the luck as the other two major prizes were well placed—in the hands of happy and appreciative recipients. All three causes were amply repaid.

Who was that citizen who was doing such a good job of advertising for the health and climate of this community (can it be Max?) when he was telling the inquiring tourists that when he came he was in such a condition that he had to "be carried everywhere he went and had to be fed as well."—and "look at me now!"

"Well," said the tourist, "that speaks pretty well for the community, how long have you been around here?"

"Well, I was born here."

Officers of the Barbershop quartet organization state that a big shindig is due in the latter part of October which will be of great interest to the members as well as the citizenry as a whole. They do urge, however, that every single member who has signed up be on hand every Monday night from now on until the big event is over, promptly and with working tools of the organization, ie, his song books and his sweetest singing voice. A talented director in the person of Mrs. Lloyd Morris and pianists, Mrs. Stan Patterson and Mrs. Bert DeMoss, are very generously helping in the Monday night practices.

BASEBALL

Having completed the baseball series wherein the Brookings Pelicans won the Rogue Valley league championship, they will not start a best-two-out-of-three games series with the highly-touted Crescent City Merchants, the first game starting at 2 p. m. next Sunday on the local grounds. This will be a real test of the team's ability under heavy pressure.

A Feller Sez—

"Gee but the state of NeeVaddy has shore sunk to a new high. They had more divorces rung up agin them in that one little state than there's been in the whole dern Rooseyveltdt dynasty, an' you know where to put the accent on that."

Along Azalea Row

Operation Peaches is satisfactorily completed at Weedy Acres, and the pickles have been put down. A good friend came, bearing a large carton filled with crisp cucumbers, and even the dill for flavoring.

We have never lived any place where the neighbors shared more generously the good things of life. Musing, as I mixed in the mustard, of the months to come, and wishing, yes, longing for a blustery week of wind and rain, when the peaches and pickles will be opened, a crackling fire on the hearth, to be enjoyed, and a good book or two brought home from the Chetco Community library, I played hookey from the kitchen and had a pre-view of one of the most recent Mrs. Dorothy Lockland checked out for me.

You will certainly want this book, which the Azalea Garden club purchased for the library. Mrs. Max Brainard says it gave her a clearer understanding of what to do and when to do it, of any book she has read on the subject.

"Favorite Flowers in Color" is written by five men, each a specialist in his own field, and is published by William H. Wise & Company, Inc., of New York. There are more than 300 illustrations, and they will bring a gleam to your eyes and make your heart beat faster! There is a very original, effective transparent grid which comes with the book. It is divided into squares, each is lettered and when this key is placed over an illustration containing two or more flowers, the different ones stand out and are easily identified. Try it yourself and see!

Thank goodness, in gardening, we are given another chance! This season is the New Year's day of gardening with good resolutions and fresh enthusiasm for next year. Mixed Borders is the chapter that is just my meat.

There is a chapter, Rock Gardens, by Thomas Everett, which is a step-by-step instruction in the art of rock gardening. There are not so many rock gardens here. Mrs. Grant Powell has a charming one which many of us have seen and admired, she tells us that they pay real dividends in beauty and interest. Looking at the color illustrations in this particular chapter, one is sorely tempted to go out and try it.

Henry E. Downer writes on Trees, Shrubs and Vines. He is a native of the Isle of Wright, and gained a wide practical experience on English private estates and in a nursery that specialized in woody plants. He was graduated from the Royal Botanic Gardens at Kew before coming to America.

There is a chapter on Roses by Paul F. Frese which rose fanciers like Mrs. Meta Hogan will probably enjoy, and all of you will like Bulbs by James Esson, if only to see how well he writes, judging from your own experiences.

The beautiful tuberous begonias and fuchsias in Mrs. Ruth Bathian's slat house, did not grow by "singing, 'Oh, how beautiful!' and sitting in the shade." The know-how is in the chapter on Mixed Border by James Esson. It gives plenty of information to start us on our way.

"Favorite Flowers in Color" is the name. Chetco Library is the place.

Pomona Grange Met Here Saturday

The meeting of Curry County Pomona Grange was held at the Grange hall, Saturday with Master C. A. Phipp presiding over the business meeting in the morning. A dinner was served at noon.

The lecturer's hour was held as opening of the afternoon's program, under direction of Mrs. Docia Sweet.

It was reported that the mobile unit for chest X-rays which had been scheduled to be in Curry county in November, will not come for lack of a county health nurse. The importance of this checkup was stressed and an effort is being made to have the unit come, anyway, at the time scheduled, as there were plenty nurses in the county who might help with the work.

The state conference, scheduled for Sept. 26, for Curry Co. was discussed. It was decided to hold the meeting in the central part of the county if a suitable place could be found.

A good report of the state session was given by the Poomona delegate, Mr. Clark. Next Poomona meeting will be held with Sixes Grange, Nov. 19.

Card Of Thanks

I wish to thank all those kind friends, seen and unseen, who gave so generously, and their help to me in this time of need. It's a comfort to us to know our dear father and husband was so well respected in this community.

Ruth Carr, Ralph and Sharon.

Cooperation also pays on the telephone party line

Telephone party line cooperation has a wonderful way of spreading. If one neighbor uses the line sparingly, the others have a better chance to use it. If another neighbor always hangs up the receiver carefully after calling, it means the line won't be needlessly "out-of-order" and others can make or receive calls. If calls are reasonably brief, everyone can make more calls.

All of these little courtesies add up to better party line telephone service for everyone. Why not try them on your party line? You'll be delighted with the improvement it will make in your service.
