Along Azalea Row

Christmastide is the children's season. Commemorating the birth of our Savior and remembering that He said, "except ye become as a little child," and "suffer little children to come unto me"—it is the time when we allow the child in us once more to come to the fore and join our children and grandchildren in their simple pleasures. Reading aloud from some book which old and young enjoy such as the "Wind in the Willows" by Kenneth Grahame, forms a common meeting ground of mirth and gaiety for all ages.

This is not a Christmas story but all who love to labor out of doors with wind and warm sunshine in their hair, and all children are amused at the adventures of the "Water Rat, the Mole and Mr. Toad," and particularly wealthy Mr. Toad's misadventures. The animals are endowed with human characteristics and you will find yourself saying, "Isn't that just like So-and-So?" There is a wild wood where the animals fear to go, for lurking in its shadowy depths the unknown enemies, and broad flowing through the story down which the Water Rat and Mole swim to unexpected, exciting new adventures. The lazy river bank where the animals rest and look out upon the world, and the safe, comfortable home of Mr. Badger remind us of how much we enjoy returning to our homes from contact with the outside world.

Walt Disney has made the "Wind in the Willows" into a movie and as "Ichabod and Mr. Toad" it is coming to our own theatre about the middle of January, but read the book as well.

Mrs. Lockland tells me that it is in the library, so soon will be. Let us "Heap on more wood!—The wind is chill; But let it whistle as it will, We'll keep our Christmas merry still."

Patsy Cook will appear in the radio finals at 11 a. m. Saturday over KIEM.

Not By Bread Alone

"And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field keeping watch over their flocks by night. And, lo, the glory of the Lord shone round about them, and they were sore afraid; and the angel said unto them: Fear not, for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ, the Lord. And this shall be a sign unto you;

ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger. Luke 2:8-12.

This was God manifest in the flesh.

This is God's atonement for sin. This is the Savior of the world.

This is the good news. This is for all people.

This is the one we hail at Christmas.— Jos. M. Johnson Gold Beach.

People of the area are reminded to be turned in on KIEM Saturday at 11 a. m.

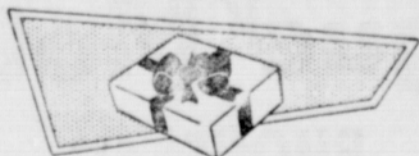

For a smile on every face and a carol in every heart we commend you to the spirit of Christmas.

Happy holiday
