

Christmas Week One Of Horror, Due To Drinking

"A glance at the papers published over the recent Christmas week-end tells an entirely different story about the type of holiday cheer brought to the nation by alcoholic beverages than that indicated in the 'ads' put out by the liquor industries," relates a spokesman of the Brookings Temperance Society, Monday (Jan. 2).

"A ranch foreman who is accused of slaying his socialite employer in Santa Rosa and shooting a family friend claims he was mentally 'blacked-out' after a birthday drinking spree. Nineteen inmates of the Salt Lake City jail were given Christmas Eve Pardons but 13 of them were soon behind the bars again. Most of them were in on drunkenness charges. A sex-murderer in Fresno admitted his guilt and attributed his act to liquor and marijuana. Police in Los Angeles pled with holiday celebrants to "hold things down to a roar" but helplessly announced that this was the 'wettest' Yule season ever.

"All this sounds mighty queer in the face of liquor advertisements which make such claims as 'For a Merry Christmas, there is nothing better in the market.' One ad that isn't hard to believe is the one that states 'Known by the company it keeps!'"

Pastor Relates His Life Among Arabs

The thrilling story of his escape from a Turkish death march and subsequent life among the Arabs will be told by J. H. Apigian, pastor of the Grants Pass District of the Seventh-Day Adventists, here next Saturday afternoon and evening the Grange hall at Harbor.

Apigian was born in Constantinople, Turkey, and spent many years in that area until the Turkish persecution of Christians. He and his family were sent on a death march into the desert but providentially escaped. He was adopted by an Arabian chief but was finally returned to his parents in Turkey by the American Red Cross.

Soon after persecution began again but finally he and his family managed to escape to America where he studied for the ministry and became a Seventh-Day Adventist minister. This program is sponsored by the Young People's Society of the local Adventist church. The public is cordially invited.

Local Lady Left To Serve As African Missionary

Charlotte Wallin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wallin of Harbor, left here at 7 p. m. on Christmas Eve to arrive in New York City in time to catch the ship scheduled to leave for Africa, Dec. 29.

Charlotte has accepted the call from the Seventh-Day Adventist Board of Missions to serve as a missionary teacher in Southern Rhodesia, Africa.

A farewell party was given at the home of Pastor and Mrs. Leo VanDolson the evening of Dec. 22. She was presented with a gold wool blanket, a set of bed linen, and a set of hand-embroidered pillow cases as farewell token.
