IT SEEMS TO ME:

By Dewey

I become more astounded each ear after seeing the Azalea estival, to comprehend its ac- ual importance to this area; of he festival's wide-spread appeal not only people of Oregon, ut to people of other states— s far away as Pennsylvania. unday, I tried to stand on the delines, listen and feel the re- ctions of the people I saw in he barbecue line, at the flower splay and art exhibit, and at her functions of the festival.

Justice to the occasion might e easy for a poet such as James . Riley, or Edgar A. Guest, but a reporter doing a job, it is t just the easiest task. How- er, I did acquire and feel the actions of the visitors, and I ust assure you that it was all od—very good.

Azalea Festivals have a state e-in which this community can- t ignore. Since Azalea State rk is state-owned, it gets con- derable state publicity and ad- rtising. State travel folders in- ude information about it, and ese folders have some three d a half million circulation. hat immediately shows this vi- nity what it gets in way of dvertising without even the king—and it's worth while.

I especiallp liked the patron- e (if that is the word for it) given the flower display and art exhibit. The guest book is filled with names, with a surprising percentage from out of state. A list of some of the visitors from far away has been promised me for publication.

The Queen's banquet also is fast becoming a tradition. At this occasion it usally is reviewed what this floral area means to travelers on Highway 101. From the mouths of people from Portland, Salem, and other places, the state points with pride to Azalea Park as one of the state's real "show places."

Another feature of the festivals I like is the joint religious service at the park, if weather permits Certainly the setting is almost perfect for this type of observance. Where, in the entire world, could a more beautiful spot be found for outdoor worship? I could not tell you.

Visitors at the festival this year remarked that it was indeed gratifying to see a community which had such apparent art appreciation. This appreciation certainly will not diminish, If I am sure of human nature.

"How do you people in this area do all these things—feed the throngs, entertain everyone without one cent of charge to guests?" was the question from no less than a dozen people to whom I talked Sunday. My reply was, "Through a lot of cooperation. We have something to show in this area, and we are proud of our community. We do want visitors to return, many times."

It is with no little amount of regret that this week I must announce that I will no longer be associated with the "Oregon Coast," since I cannot do it any justice from my position here. Mr. Ayers, an experienced newspaper man, wishes to carry on, possibly moving center of operations to a point somewhat nearer the center, geographically, of operations.

Equipment to do this type of work is expensive, At present the publication is being printed at Portland, which makes it not profitable for two to share in proceeds of the first issues. At some later date, however, if all things go well, I may again become associated with the publication.

Now you Know!

ANSWERS TO EVERYDAY INSURANCE PROBLEMS*
BY PETE LESMEISTER

Question: Not long ago we had a fire in our house and we moved most of our furniture to the home of a neighbor. It's just an idea but I wondered what'd happen if the neighbor's house had also burned. Would we have been paid for our furiture?

Answer. Yes, almost all fire insurance policies protect the owner of furniture against loss for a period of five days after the furniture has been moved to a new location. After that, it'd be necessary to see your insurance agent about keeping the policy in force.

*If you"lt address your own insurance questions to this office, we'll try to give you the correct answers and there'll be no charge or oblibation of any kind.
