IT SEEMS TO ME:

By Dewey

Perhaps the United States is about to come to its senses and learn that few nations have the honesty with fellow nations that we have. Immediately after the first world war every one of the nations we helped, with exception of Finland, failed to pay war loans—they simply laughed at us, and made no effort.

Came World War two—those same nations cried to the high heavens for aid—and got it, but no assurance was made that the old debts would be paid. This nation has been played and will continue to be played for the "sucker" it is, until other nations can be made see that our way of life is the peaceful way of life.

The United States has won two wars, and has lost twice at the peace conferences. What will the score be in this possible third world war? Russia has resorted to propaganda to win a following—why can't that old method be employed by this nation? Russia disposes of her political enemies the quiet way—United States gives hers many more chances to operate.

People who come to this nation from others have difficulty adjusting themselves to the freedom of this nation—they say we are too free. Perhaps they have the answer. Those in this nation who have much to say in opposition to its ways, should be sent to the country which they believe to be the model of perfection. That might help a lot soft-pedal this internal propaganda.

Panic is evident among home folks that hoarding will again be practiced. Stamped buyers already have caused many commodity prices to rise to new high levels, and the markets have been dumped into turmoil. Dimmick Bros. told the Pilot that many wholesalers are becoming panicky too, which doesn't help.

Partial reason for this may be the conversion to war work of several automobile manufacturing plants, thus taking certain automobiles off the market. This uncertainty is being reflected in all lines of commerce. Stocks, it seems, have felt the impact.

Pete's baseball crew definitely demonstrated, Sunday, that no game is over until the last man is out. They also showed the town of Ashland that other little "wide spots" in the road can have a team with spirit, who do not tremble at the sight of big parks, or fear big names in the sport. This crew of Pete's, many just a year out of high school, have only one goal, to give the best they have at all times.

A good example of this kind of spirit may be seen in the lad called Bob "Chopper" Westbrook who stepped into the catching position to replace a smooth fellow in that position, Bafaro. Chopper may make mistakes, but he also displayed spirit and willingness, qualities that make up the winner every time.
