

Local Group Will Attend O. C. A.

A delegation of Oregon Coast Association members from Curry County including Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Woods of Gold Beach; Pete Lesmeister of Brookings; Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Kelley of Port Orford; and Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Kirtley of Harbor, will attend the associations annual convention at Coos Bay, Nov. 12, 13 and 14, and participate in the business and social sessions.

The delegation will hear a well-rounded program of tourist promotion, highway improvement, fish and game problems, and related subjects. Scheduled to speak are V. A. McNeill, manager of the Portland Visitors Information Center; Leith Abbott, of Foote, Cone & Belding Advertising Agency, Portland; Joseph Frank, of the Hollywood Boosters, Portland and C. A. Lockwood, state game director.

Special entertainment has been planned by Coos County hosts.

Along Azalea Row

By B. Miller

"Assembly line homes are no means a modern innovation," asserts Jack Collis, owner of the Fountain Rock addition, north of Brookings. "When I was a young feller out for adventure from my Australian home, I helped on a project of this kind in Durban, South Africa. This was just after the Boer war."

"Not many people recall that although Great Britain won the Boer War, she appropriated 10 million pounds to rehabilitate the Dutch farmers and rebuild their homes on the veld. So, about 1902, nearly 50 years ago, we were engaged in packaging homes to be sent into the veld on the backs of natives."

"These human express carriers would hoist from 80 to 100 pounds of material on their heads, and no more! We ready-cut the wooden floors and studs and packaged all materials with weight in mind. The homes were constructed of galvanized iron and lined with brick. All were packed in by native runners."

As I listened to Jack Collis I thought of what someone said to a friend of mine, that everyone in the Chetco Valley is from some other place, and of course, that is quite true. There are few native sons and daughters.

People come here because they wish to do so. No accident of birth forces them to labor and live here. And a surprising number have traveled the world over. Not just the young folk who were

To The Voters:

We, the undersigned registered voters, farmers and businessmen, residing in the north end of Curry County, endorse Percy K. Lantz for county commissioner for the north section of this County; and we request that the voters of the South End of Curry County unite with us in electing our choice of candidate to fill this important office.

C. H. Brooks, farmer, Langlois; Marian Brooks, Langlois; Lute E. Henry, hardware, Langlois; H. H. Hansen, cheesemaker, Langlois; Ray Zumwalt, farmer, Sixes; Clarence Zumwalt, farmer, Sixes; Omar F. Townley, carpenter, Port Orford; Charles W. Brooks, merchant, Sixes; John M. Donaldson, farmer, Denmark;

C. Collins Guptill, farmer, Denmark; Chas R. Jensen, music director, Denmark; Adaline M. Niemann, insurance, Port Orford; Ira Tucker, merchant, Port Orford; Thos. P. Sorenson, contractor, Port Orford; W. D. Spenser, realtor, Port Orford; C. S. Hanson, property manager, Port Orford.

in the last world war; but older men, who have seen much and find this place good to look upon and pleasant to live in.

So it is with Jack Collis, who left his native Australia about the beginning of the century. He volunteered for service in the Boer war and was turned down because of a minor physical disability. Not deterred, he shipped for South Africa aboard a cattle boat and there enlisted. He saw little fighting as he was assigned to guard duty in a refugee camp. His own casualty was a black eye. A burley Boer matron, inmate of the camp, swung her sonbonnet at him and the chavy button caught his eye.

Young Collis worked in South Africa, toured England and made a leisurely way to Canada. He was caught up in the rush for homesteads near Calgary. Life was rough and accommodations rugged. Fifty cents it cost a man to sleep on the floor on the outside of the ring of men. Positions near the stove in the center of the room rented for more money.

After many adventures, Jack Collis returned to Australia and his native village, only to find that he had outgrown the life there. It was America for him! So returning, he married and reared his family. Now Brookings is his home.

As we admired the beautiful ebony cane with silver and carved ivory handle purchased from an Arab artist in South Africa, I asked him why, he who had seen so much and been so many places, choose Brookings for his home.

He laughed, and said he guessed he came because his wife liked it here! A good enough reason, I thought, but I suspect what he told me about Sydney Harbor may have had something to do with it.

"You know," he added, "The harbor of Sydney is one of the most beautiful in the world. The travelers compare it with the bays of Naples and Rio de Janeiro. But when I look out over Pelican Bay, down Crescent City way on a clear day, even Sydney Harbor takes a back seat!"

Pilot class das pay—try them.

KATHERINE'S Beauty Shop

At Residence in HARBOR, OREGON

Slosed Saturdays

Open 9 to 5 Daily

DO YOU WANT THIS IN OREGON?

DON'T BE TRICKED INTO PROHIBITION

The initiative measure on your November 7th ballot to outlaw the "sale of promotively advertised alcoholic beverages" is one of the most deceptive measures ever placed before Oregon's voting public. This measure cannot stop advertising of alcoholic beverages originating outside of Oregon...but it will bring back Prohibition...Prohibition and all its evils—bootleggers, racketeers, phoney brands and bribed officials. No thinking citizen wants these things in Oregon.

These Prominent Publications Urge You to Vote 317 x NO!

LINCOLN COUNTY TIMES—"The bill if passed would mean . . . good old 'moon' and 'bathtub gin'."

MEDFORD NEWS—"The sponsors of the petition . . . want prohibition . . ."

OREGON LABOR PRESS—"317 X NO!"

OREGON STATESMAN—"It's a big job . . . to try to control advertising in or from the other 47 states."

OREGON VOTER—"Many feel this is a backdoor approach to total Prohibition."

PORTLAND OREGON JOURNAL—"The Journal's fundamental objection . . . is that it seeks to accomplish by indirection what it cannot accomplish by direction."

ROSEBURG NEWS REVIEW—"The measure will detract from the dignity of our laws . . ."

THE DALLES CHRONICLE—"The thinking behind this bill is dangerous."

TILLAMOOK COUNTY NEWS—"However well-intentioned its sponsors may be, the bill is a bad one . . ."

WALDPORTR RECORD—"It won't not in any way be conducive to . . . perance."

LINCOLN COUNTY LEA

ASHLAND TIDINGS—"Let us not discriminate in the advertising of one legal product as compared with another."

BEAVERTON ENTERPRISE—"We should spend our energies and time in a positive approach to temperance rather than the negative striving for a furtive Prohibition."

BEND BULLETIN—"The people of Oregon, it seems to us, will thumb down the bill."

ALBANY DEMOCRAT-HERALD—"It would encourage bootlegging."

CORVALLIS GAZETTE-TIMES—"Let us not pass a law that will accomplish nothing but confusion. Vote 317 X NO."

CANBY HERALD—"Ambitious bootleggers will favor the measure, for they could turn an easy buck."

COTTAGE GROVE-SENTINEL—"We can't throw in with any measure that would deny us the right to make our own choice in the matter."

CITY TIMES—"This . . . emphatically rejects . . . ability of attempting to VOTE 317 X NO

"The Last Measure on the Ballot"