

Last Rites Sunday For Mrs. Williams

covered wagon during which time they endured many hardships such as Mrs. Williams, then Mrs. Freeman, sitting up nights burning up her hand-made quilts to keep away mosquitoes from the sick children so they could rest.

After living there a year, the family decided to go farther north—so on their sojourn to Oklahoma, other relatives joined them but hard luck struck again and the other 13 members of the party took sick, compelling Mrs. Freeman to care and cook for them by camp fire. In 1908 they decided to go west, so they chose a little town by name of Harbor, from the map and decided to go there and build themselves a house "hanging over the ocean" or take up a homestead on one of the big canyons and be the "farthest family up the canyon and live there until Mr. Freeman turned a gray mule".

They carried out this plan but this pioneer trip took a year with many disillusionments and hardships suffered along the way.

Mr. Freeman passed away in 1927 on their homestead up Jack Creek canyon. Mrs. Freeman then went to live with her son, Wilson and family, until 1930, when she was united in marriage to Robert Lee Williams. They returned to the old Freeman homestead for ten years at which time they retired and moved to their present home in Brookings, where she passed away April 27, 1951.

Mrs. Williams was well known as a kind and understanding friend and a lover of her church and flowers. She had a deep understanding of other people's sorrows and troubles and was never too busy or tired to help anyone. She always had a cheerful word for everyone and was loved as a grandmother by all the children in the community.

Along Azalea Row

By R. Miller

My daughter says that in gardening one weed leads to another—how very true! But the tithonia torch and marigold glitter seeds are up out of the ground and ready to be transplanted into the garden, so we shall have flowers, too! And "Favorite Flowers, old and new" will be the subject of a round-table discussion at the May 10 meeting of the Azalea Garden club, so come prepared to tell what yours are. Wild flowers will have a place on the program. The Azalea Singers will be with us again and Mrs. Curzon MacKenzie has a delightful program planned.

Of course the coming flower show will be spotlight interest. Martha Grayshel and her flower show committee are busy now in conferences. Preview notices are that the show which will be held at the time of Azalea Festival, May 26 and 27, will be non-competitive. Just bowers of beautiful flowers and flower arrangements.

Two full days of stimulating and exceptionally well planned meetings brought Azalea Garden Club members who attended the Siskiyou Regional conference last week, home full of enthusiastic plans for the future. Mrs. B. E. Kerns, president of Azalea Garden club, accompanied by Mrs. Charles Grayshel, Mrs. Guy Rice, Mrs. Harry Lockland, and Mrs. Eugene Ackley, drove over for the meetings.

They also attended the dedication of the Blue Star Memorial Highway of Oregon which was held at Wayside Park, 6.1 miles south of Ashland where a Blue Star marker has been placed by the Oregon Garden Clubs. The Blue Star Memorial Highways stretch across the length and width of the United States as memorials to our boys of World War 2.

Present also at the dedication was Mrs. J. George Eisenhour, president of the Oregon Federation of Garden Club as well as officials of Siskiyou Region.

Camp White was included in one of the tours. Here are 800 men, 30 Spanish-American war veterans, 400 from first world war receiving treatment.

The garden clubs assist with the landscaping of the grounds by donating shrubbery and lots of plants. Bulbs are especially desired, particularly daffodil and Croft lily bulbs. Anyone wishing to donate to this worthwhile project, notify Mrs. B. E. Kerns.

Worn nylon hosiery are much in demand in the craft shop. Save yours and let Mrs. Kerns know you can make a contribution of old nylon hose. You'll be doing a good turn for the men in Camp White.

Mrs. Ed Raveks was a guest at the April meeting of Azalea Garden Club. Her name was inadvertently left off the list of visitors.

If you are buying camellias, Mrs. Ruth Bathiany, who has over 70 varieties, recommends the following as being especially suitable to our coastal climate: Lotus—white.
L. M. Wilson—light pink.

Chandleri Elegance—pink.
St. Andre—red.
Mrs. Chas. Cobb—dark red.
Anita—pink striped carmen.
Adolph Andussen—light red-plotted white.
This is good yard planting and represents several types of flower forms.
