Nowhere A Finer Climate - Nowhere a Finer Community

Volume Six, Number 40.

BROOKINGS, CURRY COUNTY, OREGON

SPECIAL EDITION OF PILOT DUE ON THURS. DEC. 27

An edition, showing the progress of this area in the last five years, will be published by the Pilot, Thursday, Dec. 27, if present plans are not thwarted in any manner.

In the past, the Pilot has acquired quite a number of pictures which will show progress of the community, together with others which will be made into engravings especially for this issue.

One section will be devoted to the floriculture industry of this county, and especially this area, which has long ago made quite a name for itself as "the home of winter flowers."

Some space will be devoted to the phenomenal growth of the local schools. This will indicate, best of all, the population growth of the area.

One section will be devoted to the Plywood industry of the vicinity, upon which the world is casting watchful eyes.

Present plans call for 3000 copies of the issue, unless previous demands make it imperative for more to be printed.

Advertisers are asked to contact the Pilot at once to determine which section they wish to have advertising appear, if any choice be desired. Since the issue will be mailed after Christmas, the messages should include plans for the future, together with a New Year's greeting.

View Stationery Of Oregon Coast Gift Suggestion

View stationery, suitable for Christmas gifts to those people who live far away from the Oregon coast, is available at the Pilot office at present, in time for the Christmas shopping period.

Each packet, 50 sheets with at least a dozen views, with envelopes, would be ideal for the friend who has never seen this country, but who would like to know more about the famous 101 highway, and scenes along the ocean.

Stop in and look this packets over, and see what inexpensive gifts one may have to send to friends—it may surprise you.

LOCAL NEWS

Many people of the area were availing themselves of the opportunity to have chest X-rays, Wednesday, when the mobile unit arrived in town, and was set up at Freeman's Chetco Store. It was hoped that adults especially would have this service performed and check their health. There is no charge to the individual.

36-House Building Project Construction Was Started

On the road to Azalea Park may be seen forms for foundations of the start of the 36-house building project started by Glenn Diem here recently. Known as "Azalea Manor," this project will be constructed to FHA specifications, to sell a reasonable prices.—Photo by Ingram, Engravings by the Pilot.

X-Ray Unit Due Here Until Saturday

Curry County Health Association in co-operation with Oregon State Health Association, has made it possible for an X-Ray unit to be in Brookings for four days, beginning Wednesday noon, Nov. 28, to run until 6:00 P. M. Saturday, at Freeman's Chetco Store.

Hours on the first three days will be from noon until 8:00 p. m. and on Saturday from 10 a. m. until 6 p. m.

It will not be necessary for those having X-Rays to remove any clothing, only metallic objects on the clothing. Everyone is urged to avail themselves of this opportunity, especially adults. Ages are from High school to 80 years.

Wedding Saturday Parker Re-named C. of C. President

Mrs. Clifford E. Sisk announces the marriage of her daughter, Shirley, to Donald S. Johnson, on Saturday, Dec. 1, at 8:00 p. m. at Baptist Community church.

A wedding supper will be served the immediate families following the ceremony. The young couple will be at home, after the wedding trip at Yelton Apartments.

Buy Christmas Seals!

At a meeting of the board of directors of Brookings Chamber of Commerce, J. Elmer Parker, who had resigned from the board at the annual meeting, was persuaded to forget his resignation, and was re-named president of the group for another year.

Weekly Luncheons Planned
To stimulate interest in the local chamber of commerce, which in the past has been indifferent, the board of directors planned a trial test for weekly luncheons, to be served each Wednesday noon at the Chetco Inn.

Joe Taylor, of the Inn, promised that if sufficient numbers would come weekly, a rate would be given on meals.

Pete Lesmeister is making arrangements for attendance at the first meeting, to be held Wednesday, Dec. 5, and those who are planning to attend are asked to notify him.

BAND CONCERT PLEASED ROTARY TUESDAY NOON

The high school band, under direction of Marvin Wiggins, displayed the drums purchased by the club, to Rotary Tuesday noon with the club much pleased with the progress of this young band not yet three months old. The band played five selections and an encore.

Started this year for the first time in the history of the modern Brookings schools, the band has become quite accomplished, Rotarians thought, and promise was made to Mr. Wiggins that further support was forthcoming.

Chamber Prexy Spoke

J. Elmer Parker, who was persuaded not to resign from the local chamber of commerce, and was re-named as prexy, spoke to the club briefly upon the problems facing the chamber and asked further support for the chamber from business men who have the interest of the area at heart. He re-counted many of the past accomplishments of the local chamber and reminded the Rotarians how important it was to keep an aggressive chamber in action.

Several Guests Were Present

Sewell Newhouse, president of the Gold Beach club, Len Mayfield, past president of the Coos Bay club, Marvin Wiggins and Jim Grush, were guests of the club, Tuesday. Tony Christensen became a new member, with P. L. Peterson and Wm. Brown to be inducted at the next meeting.

That the outside world is aware of the progress of this area in the past five years, Sunday, was recognized by a feature page in the Oregonian, which pictured the area shortly after the formation of the council.

Ralph Vincent, Oregonian photographer, spent a week-end in the area shooting these pictures used in this page, and by them showed the phenomenal growth of Brookings and surrounding community.

The councilmen, at their usual work, were featured, together with other pictures, such as the schools, the new Catholic church, the plywood plant, and a picture of Main street.

Brookings Clinic was given a prominent spot in the page, to give certain facts to the progress of the community.

Ralph Vincent, who has been a newspaper photographer for a quarter century or more, knows well the growth of the area, and certainly the Oregonian was fortunate in being able to send a person with his knowledge here to obtain the data.

Elmer Parker, of Parker's Anchorage, then president of the chamber of commerce, was pictured on the Chetco River, for which this area is famous. It labeled him as one of the town's best boosters.
