The new pumice block building, built by T. W. Zenier, for the liquor store, east of Henricks Furniture store, is now being put to used by the liquor commission with Mr. Zenier as local agent.

Thanksgiving dinner served at Chetco Inn last Thursday, attracted a gratifying crowd. Jos. Taylor told the Pilot early this week. He says that day by day reputation of his hotel and dining room is spreading.

Have you made your reservation for the first weekly chamber of commerce luncheon, to be served at Chetco Inn dining room, on Wednesday, Dec. 5? If not do so by phone to Pete J. Lesmeister, Phone 294, at once. If sufficient number will come each week, this will be the future practice of the chamber.

The weather report, which has been a weekly part of the Pilot since its existence, except for one lone exception, is missing this week. Mr. Whirry, weather observer, failed to give it to the Pilot.

Merchants about town have put the area in a Christmas shopping mood by clever window decorations. There remains but a short month until that big day. Windows of town also show that the needs can be supplied at home.

The city council met Tuesday evening in regular session after missing last week due to absences of two members. Work of considering ordinances was the main discussion.

Donnie Munson did it again—last Saturday he caught two salmon in the Winchuck, one tipping the scales at 27 pounds, while the other was a tiny 23-lb. beauty. However, he didn't get the thrill from these that was manifest once recently when he came up town, practically floating in air—even the weight of the salmon was enough to hold him down.

The opening of West Coast Auto Supply Co store here last Saturday was gratifying to the owners, Pete and Lillian Graves. Plenty of flowers and good wishes went to the new residents from other business houses in the district.

George Berger return to his studies at Portland University, Sunday night, after spending the Thanksgiving holiday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Berger and family. He will have two Gilbert St. Marie, who operated the shoe repair wagon, next to the bakery, has moved to Longview, Wash., a card to the Pilot revealed, Tuesday.

The series of National Wildlife Federation articles currently being published in the Pilot, are creating much comment and good will among readers, who say the featur is well worth while. The youth, especially, say they learn much about nature from these articles, dealing with animals, fish or plants.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kerr will go to points in Washington this week-end, including Fort Lewis where they will see their son, Robert, who just returned from a year spent in Korea. They expect to bring him home with them on a furlough.

All lily and daffodil growers of this area are asked to furnish all the data they wish told to the world in the special edition of the Pilot, planned for Dec. 27. The home of winter flowers may be just what the world has been wanting to learn about.

An amusing incident happened to the drummer, Bill Shipley, on Tuesday, while the band was giving its concert at Rotary meeting. The head of his drum-stick loosened, and flew across Chetco Inn lobby. Bill took the incident in his stride.

Carpenters are at work on the Ben Kerns home, finishing the roof and some of the interior.
