

For What It's Worth .

By CLIFFORD P. ROWE

Just what do we mean when we speak of an educated man or woman?

There are perhaps as many definitions of an educated man running rampant today as there are people who make them. The most common conception, however, is that a person who has been graduated from a university is an educated man. To call this belief entirely unfounded would be wrong; to say that it is entirely correct would be just as erroneous. Certainly the person who goes to college has the opportunity to become educated, but it does not necessarily follow that he will.

There are men living today who attended school only so long as the law demanded who are much better educated than those with numerous degrees trailing after their names. The reverse is equally true. Such being the case, schooling alone cannot determine the educated man.

The man who spends years of study in the field of economics and then is unable to live within his income, could hardly be accepted as educated. One who studies psychology for years and years and then proceeds to bungle the job of raising his own children could hardly be considered educated. On the other hand, the man who, using the formal education he has acquired, endeavors and succeeds in leaving behind a better world when he makes his exit could be classified as having been educated—really.

But more important than all, I would say that the educated man is one who is truly aware of how little he knows, who realizes that the learning he possesses is but a speck on the huge window pane of knowledge but who strives to his dying day to use that which he has learned for the betterment of society while at the same time endeavoring to peer even further into the vastness of the undiscovered and unknown.

The stupid and ignorant man knows all the answers; the educated man is still pondering the questions.

F. S. Pictures Are Now Available

John Porisch, district ranger, while in town Monday told the Pilot he had two films which he would be glad to show any organization, or group during the time from February 11 to 16.

"Snow Ranger" depicts winter sports on the national forest; and "River Run" show one of the few remaining log drives down some river, a practice which has long since been discontinued due to changes in logging practices.

How to Save Heating Dollars...

If you have a circulating heater, or pot-type burner, use clean, economical Standard Stove Oil. It lights fast, burns evenly, leaves no gummy residue, and eliminates frequent cleaning because it burns without soot, smoke or odor. Every drop of Standard Stove Oil turns to pure heat.

Couple United At Wedding, Jan. 27

Before a beautifully decorated altar, January 27, at the Seventh Day Adventist church, Miss Betti Jane Bolin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bolin of Harbor, became the bride of Lloyd Willis Robison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Robison of Brookings. Pastor V. E. Pugh of Crescent City officiated.

Mr. Bolin gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a traditional white satin wedding gown with finger-tip veil, and carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations with an orchid corsage center. Her attendants, Miss Gladys Robinson, maid of honor, and Mrs. Manson Metcalf, wore frocks of orchid organdy with picture hats, and carried bouquets of orchid-colored carnations.

LaVaughn White was best man for his brother-in-law, and the ushers were Dennis Mathews, Richard Adams, Edward Graham and Manson Metcalf.

Before the service started Mrs. Louise Ostberg sang "Perfect Love." Dr. Alfred Vipond sang "The Lord's Prayer;" and Mrs. LaMerne Christensen played a violin solo, "Shuberts Serenade." Mrs. Fern Graham played the wedding march. Martha Metcalf and Steve White were flower girl and boy.

Following the service a reception was held at the V. F. W. hall. After the bride and groom had cut the first piece of cake, the cutting and serving was continued by Mrs. Cecil Watt, Mrs. William Fisher and Mrs. F. Rasmussen. Others who assisted during the reception were Mrs. Fred Anderson, Mrs. Foullet of Roseburg, Mrs. Fred Scothorn, Mrs. Clarence Overman and the Miss Janis Christensen, Audrey Newman, Anita Overman and Eunice Scott.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Robison are well known here. Mrs. Robison moved here with her parents from Glendale, Calif., six years ago. She took nurses training at the Glendale Sanitarium and for the
