A motto, appearing in the advertisement telling about home improvement loans, struck the fancy of everyone about town: "Patronize Home Merchants." It goes without saying that home merchants pay home taxes, support home schools, aid home enterprises, and care for local people when care is needed. These house to house salesmen, and any who invest nothing in the community should be avoided whenever possible. It will not take long to prove this statement to most any civic-minded person.

Safety Patrol Put In Action In City

This week will see the beginning of a "Safety Patrol Program" in the Brookings schools, with the sixth grade being chosen as members of the safety patrol. Officers selected were:

- Captain—David Western.
 - Lieutenant—Ray Wallen.
 - Sergeant—Sharon Mumbower.
- Crossings will be patrolled by:
1. Crossing between school and Hearststone.
 2. Crossing at end of school sidewalk.
 3. Crossing between Shell Station and postoffice.

Patrolmen will be on duty during the noon hour and when the city children come to school in the afternoon, and immediately after school when the afternoon shift is dismissed. It is the hope of the school that this program may be of great value in the better handling of traffic and elimination of danger to the children of the area.

William Brown, Brookings chief of police, has promised his cooperation in the enterprise, and has consented to help with the proper training of the patrolmen.
