

For What It's Worth.

By CLIFFORD P. ROWE

One thing that has always seemed mighty strange to me is how all of a sudden an improvement to a system or a method will be had when it might just as well have taken place years and years before.

Take for example, the latest idea for refereeing basketball games. Some eastern schools have come up with the idea of having referees sit atop perches at each end of the basketball court instead of dashing up and down the court and getting in the players' way.

Now that is a radical change, but a perfectly obvious one. It could even be improved by having roosts located in the stands. Anyone, who has followed sports at all, knows that the best officiating always comes from the bleachers.

Along this same line of thinking, it might be a good idea from a financial angle to do away with paid officials entirely. I am confident that a system could be worked out whereby a fan could be picked at random at each game—one from the home crowd and one from the visiting aggregation. In case of a conflicting decision, the home town official would have the final word. This would just be common sense; and since teams usually meet each other twice, once at home and once away, everything would be evened up in the long run.

This modern innovation in sports officiating could be utilized in other sports just as well. Just think of the drawing power for getting fans out to a baseball game if each one knew that he had a chance of getting to call balls and strikes.

The only drawback I can see to the system is that it might be confusing to the players and even unfair at times. But then what are the odds? Only old moss-backed fuddy-duddies still harbor the notion that the game is for the benefit of the kids playing it.

Couple Wed Sat. At' Parsonage'

Miss Hazel Wisener and Howard Ray were united in marriage on March 15, at 8 p. m. at the Community church parsonage, by Rev. John L. Mumbower. The bride wore a blue suit with lavender hat, bag and gloves, and a white carnation corsage.

The bride was attended as matron of honor by Helen Choons, while Vernon Choons was best man.

Relatives and guests attending were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Stovall, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Milt Graber, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Graham, Les Ray, Jeri Watson and Milton Foster.

A wedding supper was served afterwards at Don's Cliff House, where the bride cut the three-tiered wedding cake.

Rotary Club Offers 8 4-H Scholarships

Cliff Jenkins, county agent, was principal speaker at luncheon of Brookings Rotary Club, Tuesday, bringing the news that Judy and Wilbur Jensen, scheduled for the program, were home in bed with attacks of flu. He talked in the interests of 4-H work, and the forthcoming summer school at Corvallis.

Stating that the quota for the county would remain the same as last, when the club raised ten scholarships, Cliff discouraged the subscription until it was learned how many other organizations wanted to contribute. Eight 4-H scholarships were pledged.

Jack Holmes became a new member of the club. The basketball team was guests of Archie Hendricks. Art Guthrie, coach, spoke for the group.
