

Central Building Houses Many Businesses and Offices

Right in the center of town, one might say, and aptly named "Central Building," this structure houses the temporary offices of Brookings Plywood Corporation, the law offices of Samuel A. Hall, the offices of Dr. A. O. Schmitt, as well as those of Brookings Water Company, Brookings Land & Townsite Co., and the Brookings Red-E-Mix Concrete Co. The Pilot has its offices in the basement, to the rear.

Was Presented To Queen Juliana

Mrs. E. H. Grootendorst was a recipient of a special honor, granted to few people, recently when she received an invitation from the Dutch Embassy at San Francisco, to attend the dinner and reception given there to welcome and honor Queen Juliana of the Netherlands on her first visit to the Bay City.

The Grootendorsts whose former home was in Holland, became resident of United States after World War 2. Mrs. Grootendorst arrived at San Francisco two days before the dinner at the Palace Hotel and reception at the Fairmont Hotel, from Coronado, Calif., where she had visited her daughter, Mary (Mrs. J. K. Davis) and a friend whose home is at Santa Barbara.

The Embassy guests also attended a cocktail party aboard the new Dutch liner, Dongedijk, in port at San Francisco.

Matot Company Started In December, Expanded Twice

Last December A. J. Matot, who came here to retire, opened up "a place" to keep him busy, and to occupy his time. Before he had completed the first section, the second was started. The business was just nicely settled, when the building was too small, so started a third section (to the right in the picture) and even that expansion is somewhat cramped. Heating, electrical and gas appliance, with sheet metal and radio repair make up the major lines carried by the firm.

Mothers Vie For Possession of Sack

To uninformed bystanders the actions of a wild beast and a local housewife may have appeared as a quarrel over a burlap sack, Monday morning. No, it couldn't be because both are mothers.

Mrs. Tree Squirrel unaware that the lady of the house was trying to assist her in her nest-making defied the actions of the human. The squirrel was first noticed Sunday, tugging furiously at a gunny sack, which had been left under a large spruce in the yard.

When she returned down the tree, Monday at sunrise, the housewife armed with scissors, advanced cautiously from the back door.

Mrs. Squirrel, sensing danger, sprang up and down the tree a short distance and then returned to her prize find, scolding all the time. One last tug at the sack as the footsteps came nearer the tree. When she could not stand it any longer, Mrs. Squirrel took a last tug and scurried up the tree as if to say, "The fight is over."

Under observation by children in the household the mother-to-be scampered from limb to adjoining tree limbs until she descended the trunk next to the garage. After circling about she entered a crevice in the woodpile which awaits the fireplace.

The "other" mother than proceeded to cut strips from the sack so they might be usable.

Mrs. Squirrel returned Tuesday morning when all was quiet, making two trips with pieces of burlap, rolled up and partially tucked in the pockets of her cheeks.

"Smith-Corona" Typewriters at the Pilot Office.

Send the Progress edition to your friends.

Congratulations

To Management and Stockholders of Brookings Plywood Corp. We are glad you located in this area—let's grow strong together:

Ed F. Ackley

Chad's Cafe and Fountain

John Darger, Azalea Garage

B. & B. Burger Bar

Post Office Staff, Brookings

Town House Barbecue

Paul Ronninger, M. D.
Physician and Surgeon

Mack G. Malcolm, Builder

M. G. Becker, Real Estate

The Smart Shop

Kruger's Waffle Shop & Rooms

Hotel Brookings and Cabins

Karl Ostenberg, Floor Coverings

Lloyd's Barber Shop

Mildred's Beauty Salon

Roy W. & O. E. Dimmick
General Contractors

Brookings Water Company

Ed Ingram, Photographer

The Matot Company

Chetco Taxi Service

Olympia Hdw. & Supply Co.

Glen's Model Bakery

Bud & Hart's Texaco Station

Johnny's Shell Service

Parker's Anchorage

A. O. Schmitt, M. D.
Physician and Surgeon

The Hearthstone
Tommy and Lula Thompson

Roy Weideman, Builder

Samuel A. Hall

Turley's Bulb Gardens

Young's Small Hotel

Clive and Virginia Manley

Brookings Machine Shop

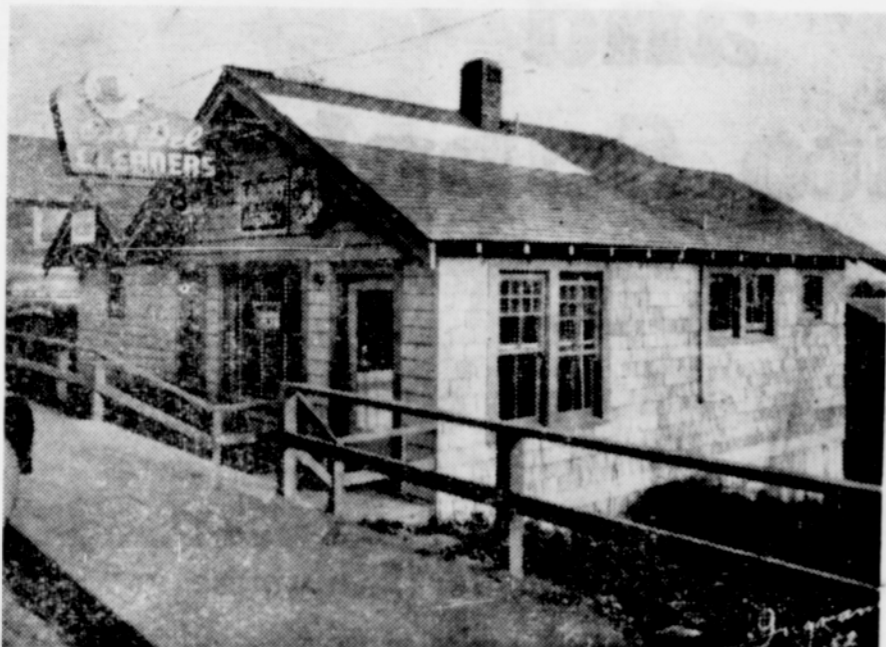

Nook Cafe, Jerry Bomar

Goetz Cottages

Brookings Red-E-Mix Concrete Co.

Brookings Laundry

The Pilot and Staff

THE ONLY CLEANING PLANT IN BROOKINGS!

We do all our own cleaning—Free pick-up and delivery!

Visitors always welcome—Telephone 2863

THE CUR-DEL CLEANERS

We Celebrate Our First Anniversary This Month

During this time we have enjoyed our work with the good people of Brookings and Harbor area, who have made it possible to operate the station. We also wish to congratulate the people of this section of Oregon and California on the development and progress made in recent years, and especially the Brookings Plywood Corporation.

Wilton L. Willey

Tom P. Ferry

We Give S. and H. Green Stamps on all merchandise and gas!

MOBIL STATION