

For What It's Worth.

By CLIFFORD P. ROWE

I gather from the conversation going on in our household lately that a vacation trip is in the offing for the latter part of August. It seems that the majority has decided (three to one) that we are going to California, even so far south as San Diego. Even to think of it leaves me cold, which is one advantage the weather being the way it is at the moment.

Why anyone who has lived in Oregon for any length of time and who is in his right mind would want to go to California during any season has always been a mystery to me. But to want to go in the summer and to call it a vacation comes under the heading of downright foolishness. The very fact that Oregon is over-run with Californians in the summer is definite proof of my stand.

I can think of hundreds of places in Oregon, all within a day's drive, where I could spend two wonderful weeks of relaxation; but when I think of California, all I can visualize are dried up hills, artificial scenery and crowded highways.

All of these arguments, however, avail me nothing against the convincing one that the children have never been in California and that we have friends there with whom we can visit. In other words, a vacation consists of going where you have never been and visiting people who would just as soon you stayed at home. Somewhere in the picture the word "rest" has been lost to sight.

So in a few weeks, we will venture onto highways south to enjoy the luxuries of inhaling exhaust gases and battling with logging trucks for survival as we get in condition for the final fray with California drivers.

Then we will visit with friends with whom we will compete in conversation as to who is making the most money, whose kids are the smartest and which of the states is the more desirable. This done we'll tear home to God's country to count the days until next summer's vacation in Oregon—I hope!

Amber Campbell and Mrs. Lucille Molino will go to Los Angeles Friday to be present at the national encampment of the V. F. W., beginning August 2. Gen. Eisenhower will be the principal speaker. They will also visit relatives while away, about two weeks.

The Charles Youngs, Mr. and

Mrs. Harold Young and children, returned Saturday night from a week's vacation at San Francisco where they saw most of the interesting features of the Bay City.

Bob Church has arrived home from the Korean area, where he spent some time in navy service. Old friends are always welcomed back to the peaceful place, especially the boys who grew up here and who have served in our defense. It is hoped that these boys may now enjoy the more peaceful pursuits of life.

In a sermon devoted to the subject "Love" read in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, August 3, it is affirmed that the love of God is the ultimate of all things. Quoting the familiar passage of Scripture, "God is Love," the first reader will read the following from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "More than this we cannot ask, higher we cannot look, father we cannot go" (p. 6), as an evidence of the practical application of God's love in the affairs of men. Attention is called to the following healing recorded in Matthew: "And, behold, two blind men sitting by the wayside, when they heard that Jesus passed by, cried out, saying, Have mercy on us, O Lord, thou son of David. So Jesus had compassion on them, and touched their eyes; and immediately their eyes received sight."
