

This Rock Was Old When Christ Was Born

Fort Rock, lonesome citadel of the High Desert southeast of Lapine towered 800 feet above a glacial lake more than 9000 years ago, so geologists tell. That was more than 8,000 years before Cleopatra sailed her gilded barge to woo Marc Antony, before she faced Caesar's command before his throne wrapped in a silken rug and not much else, before she finally bared her bosom to the cuddled asp. Fort Rock is supposed to have thrust its vast bulk up when another volcanic explosion dug Paulina and East lakes; 2,500 years before Mt. Mazama blew its mighty top to leave Crater Lake as a lure for the tourists of today. And, geologists have unearthed ancient sandals and other artifacts from the volcanic strata of a nearby lava cave which tend to show that primitive man resided there, first inhabitant of our America more than 70 centuries before the birth of Christ or Cleopatra's gilded journeys.

'Wood-shedding'

By Ol' Speb

Had a good practice Monday night. Had a reasonably well balanced chorus. We ran over our numbers for the coming event up at Port Orford.

I understand Port Orford is really giving us the publicity up there. Their Fireman's Benefit should really go over big if advertising has anything to do with it.

Pat Wilson had guests out Monday night, including his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Pendergrast.

By gosh, all these quartets we've invited for parade this fall seem to be farmers or ranchers, or connected that way in some way or form. So far nearly all we have invited are going to be harvesting along about that time of year. Hope we don't have to postpone it, due to lack of quartets, because we don't want to put on a show unless it's top entertainment.

Someone is going to have to say something to Brad Page about this business of getting animals into our practices. Last practice he wasn't satisfied with Mary having just ONE lamb, as she has had down through the years, he wants her to have SEVERAL, but then I guess it will all come out in the wash.

Let's not forget Port Orford. Everyone be there if at all possible, and that's at 9:30 p.m. daylight saving time at Port Orford.

See you there.
