That intelligent groundhog. He hibernates

Estes Morton paying off Bill Crissey with bogus $20 bills

Mr. Gallagher feeling poorly dressed, without his cane.

A confusing discussion on "Rising in the morning," going on at Chad's.

Marge Cummins' luck changing. She caught a 16-lb. steelhead.

Those night owls on Pioneer Road. Anybody have another job for three dilatory people?

That punchbowl in the Chetco Home & Auto window again.

Even the ducks have gone south.

My, my, you'd never believe what complications storms and dead batteries can bring about. Winter whiskers.

Planes giving us the eye.

Bread Higher

The grocers report a sudden increase in the price of one brand of commercially baked bread. However, the other companies shipping bread to Brookings have not found it necessary to make any additional charges.

Curry Co. Livestock Assn. Re-elects

The Curry County Livestock association unanimously reelected its last year's officers to serve during 1953. Rod McKenzie, president, and directors Ellis Garcia, W. W. Ostrander and Joe Nilsson will serve with John Donaldson, J. R. Joakam and R. M. Knox, who are serving out unexpired terms.

President Rod McKendie introduced Bill Steiwer, past president of the National Wool Growers association, who discussed the causes of recent price drops of both wool and mutton. A month by month decline in the price of lambs averages about $8.20 per hundredweight lower than November of last year at farm level. Wool is about 20 cents a pound below this time last year.

Steiwer stated the price decline was brought about by the dumping of wool by Uruguay and the Argentine to stabilize their currencies. These wools compete directly with Curry county wools. An application for a tariff increase has not been reported out of the committee due to the death of a member of the tariff commission.

The new type of legislation now being introduced, tying parity prices to tariff rates is expected to protect both the farmer and the government.

Price decontrol on wholesale lamb with no decontrol on retail lamb coupled with a serious drought in lamb producing areas are among the many factors contributing to the price decline in the lamb market. The decontrol of prices at the retail level, expected soon, should cause an upswing in prices.

The disease control committee, composed of George Edwards, Robert Hildebrand of Langlois, Dillon Miller of Ophir and headed by Harve Crook, Pistol River, was joined by Don McKenzie and Clyde Wagner of Por Orford in recommending that a test for Bangs disease be run on all beef cattle in the county to include all bulls and heifers over six months old. A favorable vote by the association was recorded.

A further recommendation that all lambs in infected areas be vaccinated for pulpy kidney disease and that the county veterinarian, Dr. Bennet, be called upon to test any cattle or sheep suspected of disease at no expense to the owner.

The Curry County Livestock Association unanimously voted to sponsor again this year the Lamb and Wool Show and Barbecue at the county fair. President Rod McKenzie appointed Milt Moore, chairman of the barbeque for this year.

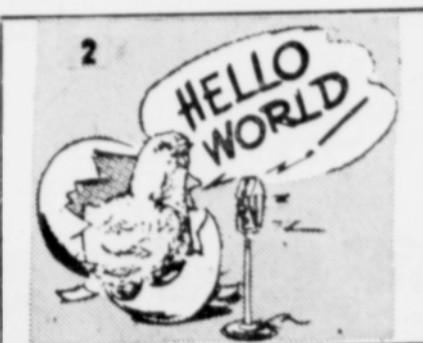

Ollie Ferguson presented trophies won at the Lamb and Wool Show to Jim Ferguson, R. M. Knox of Gold Beach, R. G. McKenzie of Sixes and Mrs. Henry (Florence) Adolphson.

Howard Leatherman, president of the Western Oregon Livestock association, invited all the members to attend the meetings Jan. 19, 20 and 21, at Coquille.

RUBBER PLAYGROUNDS

Rubber playgrounds may reduce schoolyard accidents, declared the Wall Street Journal. In Saint Louis a 260-square-yard patch of an elementary schoolyard was rubberized this year. Two half-inch layers of rubber were sandwiched between two layers of heavy asphalt. It has already resulted in a drop in accidents to the children. If year-end results prove the value of the rubberizing scheme technique, the board of education will recommend its use in all the city's schools—especially under swings.

This Week At Chetco Inn

Alfred Shones, one of the stockholders of the Plywood Corporation, spent a few days in Brookings, and is expected back in a week.

Mr. Jerry Burman of Coos Bay, who is district governor for the Boy Scouts, was our guest for a day this week.

Mr. Lyle M. Burnham, representing the A. C. Horn Company, was a visitor here this week on business.

The Oregon State Liquor Control was represented in Brookings by Mr. Carroll A. Nettleton this week and he was accompanied by Jerry Cane of the Coquille police department.

Mr. E. W. Steinhauer, who is building a new home in the Harbor area, went to Grants Pass for the weekend and has not been able to return to Brookings due to the storm.

The storm has kept Dr. Russ, federal veterinarian who also went home for the weekend and has not been able to return. Many calls have been received asking for him.

H. R. Sutton, Elmer Sismore, Pete and Norman Janzen were our guests but were able to get out for Medford before the roads were closed. They represent Ekerson Co. of Medford, Ore.

Bakersfield, Calif. was represented by Arthur and Angus Crites and Dud Rankin who were on their way to Agnes for some fishing and were caught here by the storm.

H. J. Sams and A. F. Arnosti were marooned in Brookings by the storm. They are from San Francisco and represent Guy F. Atkinson Co.

Dale Abraham and Kenneth Froom were also guests at the Inn while waiting for the roads to open. Mr. Froom is well known here and is from Port Orford.

Floyd Shroll has been our guest for the past week, due to a heart attack but we are glad to announce that he is much better and hopes to be able to go to his home in a few days.

Our chef also went over to Ashland Saturday to visit his family and he has not been able to get back so we wish to apologize if our meals have not been as good as we want them to be. We expect Jimmy back by the time this paper is out.

Legion Convention Local Business Men At Seaside June 15 Are Praised

The city of Seaside will again play host to the 35th annual state convention of the American Legion next June 15 to the 20, it was announced today by state representative Lloyd Haynes, convention commission chairman. The selection of Seaside was hailed by Legionnaires over the state who remember the hospitality of the 1951 convention, which was held in the same city.

The third American Legion child welfare conference of the Department of Oregon will be held in Portland, Jan. 10 and 11 at the Multnomah hotel, instead of Bend, Ore., as previously announced. The child welfare chairman, Jesse Rosenbaum, stated the change of location was necessary because of an expected large attendance at the conference. Chairman Rosenbaum has recently returned from national conferences in Washington, D.C., and the western states conferences in Salt Lake City, Utah. He stated, upon his return, that Legion funds for child welfare allotted to Oregon were not being spent because cases of needy children of veterans were not being brought to the attention of local Legion chairmen.

Hints For Homes

Those women who need a shoulder pad and find those in ready-made dresses too bulky and made of cotton that lumps when washed, will find that if they rip the seam of the pad and insert a nylon stocking, or as much as needed, will find the pad will dry rapidly in wash dresses or when cleaned. This is a good use for a stocking that has begun to run.

If you like cheese with your fried potatoes—and who doesn't—try this little trick next time you serve them to your family or friends: Allow 1 slice of American cheese (about 1/4-inch thick) per person, cut up into 1/2-inch pieces. When the potatoes are done, remove from fire and add cheese. Fold in lightly. Heat from the potatoes will soften the cheese just enough.
