Scouts Want Building

"A time and place for everything."

Someone wrote that little gem and the youngsters of Brookings want to use it right here.

Take the first word, "time"—time to build a Scout building is right now—while the weather is unsettled, not good enough for your summer jobs and not too bad for anything.

"And place" are the next words to consider. We have a place to build—plans and all and we are definitely at the place of need.

"For" is the next word to consider. Here are some of the people who are "for" the building. Cubs, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts and explorers, along with the countless Den Mothers, Den Dads, Leaders, Committeemen and just plain friends of Scouting.

"Everything" is the last and as usual the most important. Here in our fair city we have not only the know-how and elbow grease, but we have nearly all the material needed, including the men that go with these items. Cement work, rock, gravel, tile, plumbing, wiring, doors, locks, hinges, windows, nails, lumber, shakes, paint, lockers, sinks, toilets, tanks, tables, and many more.

As I understand this program is supposed to be some sort of a memorial to Scouting so the work has to be of an enduring nature.

How about it? Let's get busy. One of your Scoutmasters.

February Second Groundhog Day

Did the groundhog coming out of hibernation Monday, Feb. 2, see his shadow in southwestern Oregon? What do you think?

The day began in typical Web-foot winter day style. Rain started to fall at exactly 4:20 a.m. By 10 o'clock .22 of an inch was measured in Brookings and six hours later .55 of an inch more was recorded.

An overcast sky of stratus clouds was seemingly brought lower by fog with visibility reduced to five miles. The temperature remained fairly high varying from 45.4 to 51 degrees.

A south-southeastern wind prevailed with a velocity of 5 to 20 miles per hour. Sea level pressure ranged from 30.11 to 30.16.

The amount of moisture measured at 10 in the evening was .37 and .48 at 4:00 a.m., making the total of 1.62 inches precipitation for a 24 hours period.

From all indications the ground hog did not see his shadow and will be coming out of hibernation to stay for good short of the six weeks period, if there is anything to this groundhog theory.

V.F.W. Hall Roof Shingled

Several of the faithful veterans have shown up and shingled most of the roof of the V.F.W. hall. More shingles have been ordered and as soon as they arrive, will be used to finish the job. It will require, all told, about 25 squares, and cost in the neighborhood of $250. According to Post Commander Koehler the building won't need any more roof attention for a good many years. It is layed on top of the original roof, taken off at Camp White and replaced when the building was reassembled here.
