When Mrs. Warren Smith was in Portland early in the month on her way to the home of her son in Chehalis, Wash., she attended the Portland Garden Club's annual Spring Flower Show held on March 6 and 7 at the Colony, a group of old Portland homes moved to the new location on Jefferson street. Mrs. Smith feels it is well worth the time any visitor to Portland will take to visit the community which will be opened to the public some time in April. The Sunday Oregonian of March 1 carried a full page of pictures on the front of the society section in regard to the flower show and the lovely old Kamm home, the Knapp house, grill work from the Portland hotel and marbled banisters from the old Oregonian building, all combined to preserve the beauty of a bygone era for posterity.

Miss La Von Wagner, teacher in the elementary school, drove to Roseburg on Sunday, where she will spend part of the spring vacation with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. James B. Grizzell of Milwaukie, Ore., were forced to wait in Brookings for a son to come from Van Nuys, Calif., to pick them up after their car was wrecked about 14 miles north of Brookings. On their way to Pasadena, Calif., to help celebrate the birthday of another son, their car was badly damaged when it slipped in loose gravel. Fortunately they were unhurt.

Jimmy, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Tygart, celebrated his eighth birthday Saturday with a party for a group of friends. They enjoyed ice cream and cake at the Tygart home and then saw the afternoon show.

Mrs. William Thompson received a badly burned ankle Thursday when the hot water hose on the washing machine came off when she was doing laundry.

The jeep station wagon belonging to Leo Zuber was wrecked on the Harbor hill south of the Chetco bridge on Saturday night.

Bobby Berger had too much to carry home when he went fishing on Saturday and left his fishing pole for someone else to carry. In some way it was forgotten and later found by Bob Swanson, who brought it to The Pilot office about a half hour after notification of its loss was received. The look on Bobby's face when he recovered his precious pole, gave those present an uplift for the balance of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Shehan and daughter, Colleen, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Mickey Gould. The Shehans live in Coos Bay but will be remembered by friends as living in Brookings about five years ago.

♦ Hobby Craft, Yeltons.

The weekly Rotary luncheon and meeting was held Tuesday at the Chetco Inn with Homer Kessler in charge in the absence of President Earl Breuer. Ross Putnam showed pictures of his logging operations at Boonville, Cal., and also up the Chetco.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Rettke are in Portland this week to be near their son, born March 2 in Crescent City. Born with the rare "Rh" blood factor, he was flown to Portland through the services of Mercy Flight organization, where seven blood transfusions were given the small lad. If improvement continues it will be possible to take him from the hospital to the apartment of Caroline Kerr, sister of Mrs. Rettke, yet near medical aid and a little later to be brought home by his parents.
