

Ed and Mendys Start Extension Here This Week

Work was started this week on an extension to the Texaco service station, known as Ed and Mendys, owned and operated by Ed Thornton and Val Mendenhall, Jr.

The addition, 16x42 feet, will be on the rear of the building, making space for another lubrication division. The large doors will open from the east side.

Ed and Mendys started in business seven years ago in December when the station was located where the Par store is today. They purchased from W. P. Walden, who had the station but a few months after securing it from Ed Hoar.

When the station equipment was moved to the present location five years ago it was thought large enough to take care of increasing business for years. Now they find themselves cramped for space.

School News

Two Brookings high school teachers have notified the school board of their resignations for the 1953-54 school year. Mr. Chaney, who came to Brookings last fall, has indicated that he will go into business in the community. Mr. Wiggins has not yet announced his plans for next year.

Cliff Robinson, state supervisor of secondary education, has arranged for an evaluation of the Port Orford high school the last of this week. Larry Sydow, Gold Beach principal; Robert Thetford, Langlois principal, and Lynn Hampton, Brookings principal, from Curry county, and George Lienkemper, Bandon superintendent, have been asked by the State Department of Education to assist in this evaluation.

Weather conditions do not indicate that this week is the beginning of the baseball season, but weather permitting, Brookings is scheduled to play at Gold Beach Friday afternoon.

Satellite Fashion Show Review

The Satellite Social Club held its sixth annual Fashion Show at the high school Saturday night with a good crowd in attendance.

The following account of the demonstrations, modeling and prizes given away was written by a man. This gives a different slant to the subject and perhaps you, as a reader, can guess the writer's name.

White Appliance showed proof that a woman can iron a shirt better than a man, even though she is blindfolded — wonderful demonstration.

The Yardstick proved that your home can be more beautiful by the use of pleasing drapes.

The Superintendent of Parks displayed the usual amount of energy. In this case the comfort was supplied by Hendricks Furniture Co.

Who was that exotic creature representing Yeltons?

Mothers, we know you are proud of the small fry that modeled for Tots and Teens. Both Mrs. Mitchell and the little ones were "superb."

Mincer's Jewelry sure made a big flash.

If there is a question as to type of hair styling you need or where to go for this service you no doubt are more confused than ever, as all Beauty Salons attempted to outdo one another and displayed coiffures that were out of this world.

Phillips Dad and Lad shop not only had a good display of merchandise, but who saw it? Did you see the models? Who's interested in the wrappings? Al Phillips' commentaries were excellent.

Real he-men from the wide open spaces represented Chetco Home and Auto Supply and for a few minutes the male members of the audience's eyes returned to normal size and they were trying to decide which was more interesting, the 30-36 or the blonde.

Hanscam's went all out as usual to contribute an attractive setting as well as quality merchandise. Too bad one of the models got the garment on wrong side out.

Boy! Could that gal sing? Which gal? Both. Sorry you didn't get to see the accompanist.

Lydia Browman of Eva-Lee made a special effort to exhibit high style fashions which was evident by the large number of photo flash bulbs used in taking pictures of models and garments.

The above paragraph, of course, should have been punctuated by Gould's shoes, as each garment description ended in these three words: "Shoes by Gould's."

All displays were enhanced by wonderful effects furnished by Kerr Hardware & Electric.

We wonder if there will be some hasty marriages so as to take advantage of the three tiered wedding cake that Young's Model Bakery will give to the first local couple married after date of Fashion Show.

You were right, the Chimes (Satellite's door prize) were drawn by an owner of a new home.

We know that you would like to have ten dollars worth of free groceries. Redfield's market made it possible for one of those in attendance to do that.

You should have seen the surprised and pleased expression on the person that won that wonderful ironing board cover, donated by Par Hardware.

The lady was sure lucky to win the ten dollar savings account donated by Oregon State Bank.

Even the mother-in-laws were brought into the drawing of the ham from Glen's Market.

Did you see Virginia fall over her feet dashing up to the stage to receive the $25 grocery order from Dimmicks Market?

No doubt the winner of the Chetco Drug store candy was on a diet.

Everyone present would have been pleased to have won the beautiful table lamp donated by Brookings Furniture.

Cedar Lane Cannery made it possible for five members to draw gift packages of canned seafood.

We have proved again that there is much talent locally as exemplified by the good master of ceremonies job filled by Art Benson.

The old and young cut a rug at the dance after the show.

Scout Drawing At I.O.O.F. Hall Monday, March 30

A drawing for winners on tickets being sold by Troop 32 of the Boy Scouts will be held at the I.O.O.F. hall on Monday night, March 30. The money raised by this means goes into a fund to help defray expenses of Scouts to the National Jamboree at Los Angeles in July.

A Mixmaster, valued at $42, will be given; a .22 repeating rifle at $30; a $12.90 fishing rod and reel; an archery set at $7, and a lady's jewel box.

4-H News

The 4-H Busy Needles met at the home of Mrs. Fitzhugh, mother of Marjorie who led in reciting the 4-H motto. President is Jody Dimmick. Sandra Galls leads the pledge and Virginia Bishop the yells. This past week girls who had finished their headscarfs started work on their stuffed animals.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Beaulieu spent the school vacation in Olympia, Wash., with their daughter Phyllis, her husband, Jack, and children, Stephen and Susie. Mrs. Beaulieu's sister, Mrs. Edith Ackley, accompanied them.
