Festival Time In Portugal

Festivals are fun for everyone in Portugal as these young dancers of Nazare prove in their spirited version of an ancient folk dance. Their whirling skirts are made of hand-woven, bright-colored plaids which all the residents of this charming fishing village have worn for centuries. Festivals in Portugal begin early in the spring and continue through the summer until late in October. The Portuguese fiesta has all the gaiety and warmth of the county fair and stock show, plus gay parades, bonfires, and gala fireworks to round out the holiday spirit.
