ning of another reconnaissance.

However, such a step is an early one, he warned, and carries no guarantee that the project will be authorized even after the preliminary survey.

The Roseburg representative complimented the gathering on the obvious enthusiasm displayed in this area, and commented on the changes that have appeared in Brookings since he last was here. Earlier he had heard Estes Morton give a report on the industrial development of Brookings which listed an impressive number of new establishments built here in the last four months.

And he defended the record of the Republican administration in its first months in office. Rather than being stung by Democratic taunt of "Big Business Government" he said, he was proud of the business like way the Republicans had gone about administering the Nation, and he singled Interior Secretary Doug McKay out as an example of efficient operation of the largest department in the Government.

Dinner was served to the crowd by the Altar Society of Star of the Sea Catholic Church here... and it was delicious.

Representative Ellsworth was introduced by Charles Grayshiel of the Brookings-Harbor Chamber of Commerce. The meeting was conducted by Chamber President Clive Manley.

Library Gets New Volumes

Many new volumes have been added to the shelves of the library, among them several editions fresh from the presses. These include Yerby's "The Devil's Laughter," Pearl Buck's "Come My Beloved," Coatsworth's "Old Whirlwind," the story of David Crockett; Cronin's "Beyond This Place," a replacement of the volume stolen from the library, "The Wonderful Sea Around Us," by Miss Carson, Gile's "Kentuckians," Elizabeth Gouge's "New Heart of the Family," sequel to Pilgrim's Inn; the life of Mrs. Robert E. Lee, entitled "The Lady of Arlington," by Kane; Hilton's "Time and Time Again," and, of course, a selection of several books popular with boys and girls of all ages.

There is a very noticeable upswing in the list of borrowers from the shelves and the chances are that this will continue, rapidly, with the advancement of the season.
