Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wright returned last Thursday from the Silver Lake country where they were hunting. Also in the party were Mr. and Mrs. Walt Wright.

Forest Tree

Seedlings Offered

SALEM, Ore.—(Special)—The 1953 bulletin, "Trees for Farm Woodlands" — with order blanks for obtaining forest tree seedlings for this fall and next spring — is now off the press, Lynn F. Cronemiller, assistant state forester said this week in Salem.

Any woodland owner who desires seedlings and who owns at least three acres of land, may qualify to buy the young trees at cost for farm or forest plantings, Cronemiller said. The forester advised that sales cannot be made for plantings within incorporated cities, suburban residential areas or similar tracts which cannot be classified as farm or woodland plantings.

Over five million tree seedlings are produced each year by the Oregon Forest Nursery at Corvallis for use on farm woodlands windbreaks and reforestation projects. About one million are delivered to farmers with the remainder being used for replanting state forest lands. Ten conifer and six hardwood species of trees are available.

Associated Station Changes Hands

Sale of the local Associated Service Station was announced last week by Chuck Grey, first operator of the station.

The new operator is Lynn Merrill, formerly of Medford. Mr. Merrill took over Chuck's holdings last week.

Chuck will continue his duties Station. Operation of the station, he said, was too much to handle. Station. Operation of the station in addition to his other duties.

Mr. Merrill, who is in the process of moving his family from Medford, was formerly with the Chrysler agency there.

The Merrills are no strangers to Brookings, having visited here often. Mrs. Merrill's brother, Bill Tuffs, is an inspector at the California Station.

Copies of the new bulletin which contains instructions in planting and growing trees — along with order blank forms — are now available at the state forester's office, Salem, Ore.

Important Notice

The Grocery Merchants of Brookings, who realize their obligation to the public, and who like a Sunday off as well as other people, will take turns in being open Sunday.

This Sunday, October 17, BROOKINGS MARKET will be the only grocery store in Brookings open. On Sunday, October 24, FREEMAN'S MARKET will be open. On October 31, REDFIELD'S MARKET will be open, and November 7, HI-WAY MARKET will be open. To avoid confusion, we have started from one end of town and worked toward the other end.

We thank you sincerely for your past patronage and for your cooperation, so that we, too, may enjoy Sundays.
