

Along Azalea Row

By RUTH B. SMITH

THE ARBOR DAY program was a huge success in spite of the inclement weather and the grade and high school students will not soon forget the beautiful pictures and the commentaries of Mr. Albert K. Weisendanger who served as master of ceremonies at the tree planting. He talked to three different groups, showing different pictures to each, and the fact that he is quite a master of the harmonica as well as the spoken word did not hurt his standing with them a bit. The seven flowering plums are in place in front of the grade school building and all we have to do now is to watch them bud and bloom.

Speaking of trees—and recalling that George Washington's birthday is almost here—brings to mind that the famous cherry tree is not the only one with which we may associate the Father of our Country. No less an authority than the Natural History Magazine recounts that sixteen trees still standing on the grounds at Mount Vernon are known to have been planted over 150 years ago by George Washington. They include white ash, elm, hemlock, holly, and linden among others. It is well to remember him as a planter of trees as well as a chopper. Perhaps his boyhood experience made him more tree-conscious as he grew up!

The Chamber of Commerce has had an inspiration to establish the custom of naming an Honor Man of Achievement, as is done elsewhere. Were the Garden club to inaugurate such a practice within its own ranks, honors would certainly go to Mr. W. L. Crissey, according to comments heard hither and yon. He was a member of the club at its beginning.

has lent his encouragement and advice and contributes his time, plants and recommendations along horticultural lines at all times. The old "better mouse trap" story holds true in his case for a path is beaten to the door of the Crissey home, for the purpose of looking and learning. Each season there is something new to see; right now it's two small succulents, each not more than eight inches high by five across, which are bearing a total of 125 little scarlet blooms—quite a feat for such little producers. The name is Kalanchoe.

The Garden Club meeting as well as the Arbor Day program benefited by Mr. Weisendanger's presence here last week. He talked to the club from the standpoint of Keep Oregon Green, illustrating his lecture with colored slides of the devastation wrought by forest fires and in contrast, the beauties of the state which should be protected. It was truly a sugar-coated talk on conservation. His reel, also in color, "You'll Remember Oregon," should be shipped broadcast as an invitation to use our state as a recreation land for it took us on a tour of all the beauty spots of the state. There was danger of our popping our buttons with pride when we saw our own Azalea and Harris State parks, and rode the Rogue River in imagination. Everyone can agree that Curry county has a full share of the beauty of the state.

Guests at the Garden Club always express surprise at the large amount of musical talent here and the Garden Club is one place to find it. Our Azalea Singers are indeed a proof. They opened their part of the program Thursday with "White Night" (Marjorie Elliot), a difficult but well-executed number. Their director, Mrs. Curzon Mackenzie, followed with a solo, "Ebb Tide" (Robert Maxwell), which was beautifully sung and most appropriate to our location. The closing number was "Auf Wiedersehen, Sweetheart" (E. Storch), likewise enjoyed. Mrs. Meta Myers accompanied the group.

Mrs. Clara Kerns gave a five-minute explanation of the daffodil, which is indeed the Flower of the Month in these parts. In calling attention to the arrangements brought by members, attention was focused especially on the Terrarium executed by Mrs. William Phelps. This columnist confesses that, though she had seen them often, she had never known a Terrarium by its name. This only proves it pays to belong to the Garden Club. (Bargain dues $1.00 for the balance of the club year. Unpd. Adv.)

The Valentine exchange was in charge of Mrs. John Molino and many lovely plants were carried home. Hostesses for the dessert luncheon were Mrs. Roy Weideman, Mrs. Louis Peterson and Mrs. Jessie Judkins.

Though last to be reported, far from least is the coming event which really cast its shadow before, as Mrs. Guy Rice gave the club pointers on preparation for the Flower Show to be held at the time of the Azalea Festival. She emphasized first of all that no show can succeed without complete cooperation of every person who grows flowers or plants. Observers at the flower shows have been heard to comment, "I have better than that in my garden!" Well, why didn't you enter it? You might have won a ribbon or two. Just because there are many talented growers and arrangers here, it need not discourage the majority of us. We want the many visitors who come to the festival to enjoy a variety of displays and arrangements.

It was Mrs. Newton who said that rules of arrangement are to aid us in expressing what pleases us. However, it is a poor rule without its exceptions and an arrangement made to express one's own feeling may still be beautiful. The schedules will be available early in March, giving all of us two months to plan under which section our blooms can qualify and to start grooming the plants. If you have no garden, there will be other sections devoted to terrariums, dish gardens and house plants.

Exhibitors are not confined to those who belong to a Garden Club. Who won a great number of ribbons last year? A MAN—not a member.

From now on think and talk in terms of Flower Show and help make it the best and largest to date. Let's have a chain gang, on the order of the old chain letters. Resolve to be an exhibitor and get your neighbor and a friend (or more) to do likewise; they, in turn, will suggest the idea to other friends and away we all go to the 1954 Flower Show.
