SMORGASBORD DRAWS CROWD

Over 800 people attended the Smorgasbord sponsored by the Smith River PTA Saturday evening at the Community Hall. The hall was filled to capacity with visitors from all parts of the country, including a large number from Brookings and Harbor.

The main hall was attractively decorated in colorful decorations which carried out the Swedish theme. The food was arranged on long tables where each one helped himself, and there were tables grouped around the room where 200 were seated at a time.

Ted Westbrook played on the Hammond organ during the dinner. Other music was furnished by Robert Reuss, Joe Reichlin, Rodney Saxelby and Bruce Brum.

Following the serving of the food, tables were cleared away, and entertainment was presented. The hostesses and those assisting were dressed in colorful Swedish costumes.

General chairman of the event was Anna Marie Westbrook, with co-chairman Edna Samuelson. In charge of decorations were Terry Ulrich and Mary Ostrom. In charge of making the Swedish delicacies were Klara Loevenborg and others.

Proceeds of the event will be used by the PTA to carry on activities of the school, and to purchase playground equipment.

CHILDREN SEE SHOW

All the pupils of the grade school were given a special treat Tuesday when Mr. Kemp gave a special showing of "The Sea Around Us."

ARLON NORMAN
DIES SUDDENLY

Friends of Arlon Norman, owner of the Smith River Mill Cafe, were shocked to hear of his sudden death Friday night in Seaside hospital. He had been admitted for medical treatment the same day.

Mr. Norman was a former Brookings resident before moving to Smith River. He had purchased the cafe recently.

He is survived by his wife, Doris Smith Norman, four step-children, and his parents and several brothers and sisters in Chehalis, Washington.

Funeral services were held Monday, with interment in Smith River Cemetery. Reverend James Shelton conducted the services.
