School Is Given Secondary Status

Cliff Robinson, State High school supervisor from the office of State Superintendent Rex Putnam, visited the high school yesterday morning to confer with Lynn Hampton, superintendent, regarding the program here. He had previously given his instructions concerning the double shift program.

At Robinson's last official visit of evaluation early in 1954, he raised the status of the high school from conditionally standard to standard, commenting as follows: "as a result of conditions encountered at the time of my visit, and the correction of deficiencies that have been pointed out earlier, this office is happy to advise the board that Brookings-Harbor high school is now recognized as a standard Secondary school."

Robinson made special mention of the high school library at that time, saying: "The library is in good condition, but thought should be given to the expansion of the book collection when it is moved into the new high school building."

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Whitaker and family had as their guest Mrs. Whitakers mother, Mrs. Mascall of Dayville, Oregon. She has just left after a weeks visit.
