feels that it is just as important as any other place in the county. Forsyth believes that the county has outgrown its present court house, and needs a new one badly.

Charles Doane—Born in Marshfield, Ore., and went to school there. Elected County Commissioner in Coos County in 1936. Was a civil service employee for U. S. Engineers, has traveled all over U. S., Canada, Mexico, South Pacific, Japan. Married, has children.

Was a rancher with 2230 acres near Langlois, and is now a resident of Gold Beach. Member of Sixes Grange, Pomona Grange, and Masonic Lodge.

He believes in oiling the dust, gravel roads in the county, and in cutting expenses through efficiency and progress. He says:

"I am a hard man with a dollar. I shall give you a dollar value for every dollar spent".

The biggest difference between Doane's thinking and his opponent is in Doane's attitude towards the court house. Doane says that the money already set aside for the new court house, $250,000 should be used right now for black topping county roads instead of for a court house.
