ITS TIME TO REGROUP

With the coming of the new year, and now that we've become more or less entrenched in our new building, having completed our fourth month publishing the Pilot here—it's time to regroup—to take stock and analyze to see what has been accomplished, and what yet needs to be done in achieving our aim of making the Brookings-Harbor Pilot a better newspaper.

We were faced with certain difficulties in coming to a new town, and then without knowing a person here, trying to gather news. But the friendliness of the people in this area overcame that difficulty quickly, and now more so every day we feel that we're a part of the community.

What have we been falling short of? Three things mainly—we haven't been getting enough local news, those little items of interest, about you and your neighbors. We need your help on that too. Secondly, we haven't been getting enough pictures in the paper. That we expect to take care of shortly, with our newsroom and facilities for darkroom work. We hope to have a camera here, and then look for your picture in the paper.

Thirdly, our paper has been late in the mail too often. Every week we find a completely new excuse. We say that our machinery failed, or there was a power shortage, or our newsprint didn't arrive, or we lost a printer, or we had to move, or simply "eh!" But we are running out of excuses, and we are trying to correct that malfunction.

We like Brookings, and we intend to make it our permanent home. So, we want to give the people a paper they want to have in their homes. We've got a way to go yet, but we're going to do it.

SKETCHES

It seems as if the larger size paper was well received. I advised all adverse critics to call via the back door and haven't seen a soul come crawling through. Those in favor of the big city style have been many in number.

Some very good friends of ours from Wisconsin surprised us with a visit Thursday afternoon. They are on a few weeks vacation touring the west coast. It was grand seeing them and having them tell us all about our former friends back "east".

The couple, Mr. and Mrs. John Hiedersheid, operate a restaurant in Clintonville, Wisconsin. We told him of the many opportunities here in Brookings. They liked the town and I think we gave them something to think about.

John is an old Sheephead player and was surprised to see the lack of effort by the Brookingsites towards fostering that grand old pastime. Those of you who are interested in learning something about Sheephead, or Shapskof as the Germans would say, drop in at the office and we'll teach you a few of the finer points.

It is hard to believe that Christmas is only a few days away. I don't have the aching back from hovelng snow, the job of putting chains on my tires, or trouble keeping my windshield free from ice. Those little things that remind one of winter back in the Badger state. And somehow Christmas is a winter holiday. But I do find that we have one thing here, that is universal as far as the yuletide season is concerned, that is the empty wallet.

But since Christmas is the season of giving I don't mind it too much. What's the difference if my wallet is empty and I've brought some cheer into someone's life? After all, it's only money. And as old as I get I still like to wake up Christmas morning and shuffle through the packages under the tree hoping to find a little something from the old man. Then after I try on the new ties its fun to help son Todd open all his boxes. They're making these toy cars and trucks much fancier than when I was a kid.

Yes, the wallets may grow thin.
