

LETTER TO EDITOR

Dear Editor:
In reading your editorial: Another New School. Wouldn't the local school board do well to have an eye coked, with a view toward establishing another school building site in the district, as the present site bounded by Pacific, Pioneer, and Easy streets is entirely inadequate without crowding out a play-ground and athletic field?

Since the south boundary of school district 17, is, presumably, at the Cal-Are, how would it not be sensible and proper to scout out the possibilities of acquiring a suitable plot of ground in Harbor, while land values are still relatively low?

An elementary or "grade" school will sooner or later have to be built there—so why not now?

From here on out, the population south of the river will increase at an ever accelerating pace in comparison to that of the "down-town" Brookings area. This is a prediction—sans crystal ball.

Explain New State Licenses

Those mysterious letters appearing on Oregon's new gold and blue passenger car license plates have a simple explanation, says the Secretary of State's motor vehicle division.

They correspond with the month the plate was issued. All plates issued in January have the letter "A" following the first numeral. February plates will have a "B", March "C", and so on through the remaining months. The letters "I" and "O", however, will be skipped because they resemble the numbers one and zero.

The letter system is necessary, Secretary of State Earl T. Newberry points out, because Oregon's steadily increasing motor vehicle count will eventually exceed the highest number that can be stamped on a license plate and still be visible from a reasonable distance.

The plate size is pegged at six A. De Phillips inches by 12 inches, the nationally recommended standard, which provides space for a maximum of six figures. Gold and blue, incidentally, are the official state colors of Oregon.

Plates expire each year in the month embossed on the upper left portion. While the letters match the months in logical sequence, Newberry urged car owners to check the month as it appears in abbreviated spelling on their plates to remind themselves when registration must be renewed.

About 700,000 sets of the new plates will be issued in 1955, Newberry, said, which means an average of 68,000 each month. They will stay permanently with the cars for which they were issued and will be renewed in 1956 by validation tabs attached to slots in the upper right portion.

A meat marketing complete with at least three specialists, and aimed at the consumer, the housewife, is scheduled for the Chetco Grange hall on Tuesday, February 22, according to Ken Priest, Curry County Agent.

The general public is invited to attend the session, which will include a demonstration on meat cutting and wrapping, and identification. The whole show is aimed at acquainting the housewives with the lower cost cuts of beef and lamb.

The meeting will be sponsored

Library Board Meets Monday In New Building

The Library Board held its first meeting in the new building, Monday evening. The members sat on cartons of materials, using a sheet of plywood as a table. The electric heaters took the chill off.

Announcement was made of book gifts from Mrs. Peggy Ludlum, now of Santa Barbara, Mrs. George Funk, and Floyd Morrison.

The board decided to have a "Wishing Well," and a library membership desk operating at the forthcoming annual bazaar, in the VFW Hall, Feb. 19th.

The board is convinced that only a little more work is necessary to make the building available for use. Mrs. Rice said the sewer and water hookup will be made right away. The ceiling tile is in the building and will be installed within a short time, insulation batts are there and anyone who cares to can put this in. There are still quite a few who formerly put themselves down for volunteer work, both men and women, who would now be welcomed. Keys to the building are in the hands of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Brainard and Mrs. Erma Rice.

The secret of success is constancy to purpose.

Mrs. Alice Putnam returned Friday, Jan. 21, from Klamath Falls, where she spent a month, visiting her sons.

Mrs. C. A. McKenzie returned last Saturday from a business trip with her husband, that took them to Seattle. They had been gone since the first of the year.
