Push-Button Here On '56 Dodge

Push-button controls will select the driving range desired on all 1956 Dodge cars equipped with automatic PowerFlite drive. Owners will literally "tune-in" the desired car operation for any driving situation.

Never in the history of automotive development has there been such a significant single forward stride as this elimination of all the work of historic "shifting". Viewers of the new Dodge at their first public showing in Dodge dealerships on October 7 will be in a class with those who saw the first self-starter, the first pneumatic tire or the first electric headlights.

Like the starter, the electric headlight and the hydraulic brake, the new push-button controls represent another forward step in safety; another attention-dividing task has been eliminated, leaving the driver freer for road concentration and car guidance. Another great step has been taken from completely manual towards completely automatic car control. These push buttons operate with the same ease as push-button radio.

Located on a graceful extension of the left side of the instrument panel, the push buttons can be reached without moving the arm forward. Placed to the left of the driver, the controls are out of reach of other passengers—especially important when small children are in the car. And there are no protrusions which catch on sleeves or other loose parts of clothing.

TWO DIVORCES GRANTED IN COURT

Two divorces were granted by Judge King in Circuit Court on Monday in Gold Beach.

Edgar L. Comer was granted a divorce from Geradine Comer and Violet Mae Gillette was granted a divorce from Samuel Gillette, Jr. In this case the mother was granted the care and custody of the minor child of the parties.

Ed. F. Ackley, local attorney, appeared for the plaintiff in each case.

The fast boat fanciers, competing among themselves on the Chetco last Sunday, had a time which included "Abandon Ship" exercises sort of impromptu. Tom Dent did a good job, dunked self and craft without missing a beat with his motor—which promptly hit the water and spewed little pieces of crankshaft here and there.

Barry Sage also missed the water in one place and he got a dunking, tried it again and got another.

Hewitt's Anchorage was a busy salvage center for a while.

The Faith Lutheran Circle will hold their October meeting at the home of Mrs. Jerry Shroeder, on Wednesday, October 12, at 7:30 p.m.

An hydraulic interlock will prevent a transmission shift to reverse, should the driver inadvertently select the "reverse" button when the car is moving forward above 10 m.p.h.
