To Speak On Trip To United Nations

A trip to the United Nations will be the highlight of a meeting of the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs and their friends on Thursday, November 10th, a week from this Thursday, at 8:30 p.m. The P.T.A. members and other interested people are also invited to attend.

The contest winner, a Coquille girl, of last year will speak on the trip, which she won in an essay contest. The contest was entitled "What The United Nations Means To Me."

Another contest is planned by the group again this year with the same theme. The contest is limited to those in this area, which includes Coquille, Coos Bay, North Bend, Bandon, Port Orford, and Brookings.

The girl will also speak at the high school to the youngsters at 2:30 Thursday afternoon.

Henry Kerr gave a showing of his Holy Land picture to Port Orford Lodge 170, A.F. & A.M., last Saturday evening. There was a capacity crowd to see this much appreciated entertainment.

Brookings Man In Army Games

Private Joseph R. Sarver, son of Mrs. Loretta Ledford, Brookings, recently took part in a field training exercise held by the Infantry Division in Southern Germany.

Sarver, a member of Company I of the division's 11th Infantry Regiment, entered the Army in September 1954. He completed his basic training at Fort Ord, California and arrived in Europe in February of this year.

He was graduated from Brookings-Harbor high school in 1952 and was employed by Archibald Trucking Company in civilian life.

8 OUT OF 10 CARS TAKE THIS DANGEROUS RISK

1. LOSS OF CAR CONTROL. When wheels are out of balance your car shimmies, weaves and vibrates. You have no secure feeling . . loss of control can result.

2. CAR SHOCK AND WEAR. Just five ounces of unbalance delivers 64-pound blows every time the wheel turns. Wheel bearings, steering mechanisms and brake drums suffer dangerously.

3. DRIVER FATIGUE. Road shock and shimmy, transmitted to the steering wheel, tires you . . . and a tired driver counts disaster.

4. COSTLY TIRE WEAR. Unbalanced wheels shorten tire life up to 30%, increases danger of skidding . . . ruins your smooth ride.

HERE IS WHAT TO DO ABOUT IT . . . . NOW

Applications For Postal Clerks Open

Postmaster William Thompson announced that applications for substitute postal transportation clerk positions in the states of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and Montana will be accepted as of October 31, 1955.

Starting pay for the position is $1.82 an hour. Benefits such as insurance coverage, sick and annual leave, retirement or Social Security benefits make the positions very desireable, the Postmaster related.

Applicants must be bona-fide residents of the state from which they apply, be U.S. citizens and have reached their 18th birthday. interested persons should make application at the Brookings Post-Office.

CURRY LIVESTOCK PRODUCERS TO MEET

Curry County livestock producers will hold their annual meeting on Friday, November 4, announced Dave Shaw, President, today.

The meeting, says Shaw, will start at 10:00 a.m. in the Curry County courthouse.

Topics to be discussed are taxation, disease control, predatory annual control and control of range and pasture weeds.

A no-host social hour and dinner is planned for Friday evening.

Everett Isenhart and Jasper Yoakum of the Sixes country, are on a trip east to Belvedere, South Dakota, where they will pick up a load of Scotch Highland cattle for their ranges, up Crystal Creek. Everett lived here when he was a boy and young man, and has several relatives in the area.

NEW SAW IS DEVELOPED BY HOMELITE

Alive with power—more power, less weight, that's the Model 5-20 just announced by Homelite, available locally from Coast Power Saw and Equipment Company. Built for production the Model 5-20 delivers a full 5 horsepower, yet weighs only 20 pounds—the most horsepower per pound of any chain saw ever developed is the claim of the firm.

The 5-20 slices through 20-inch trees in twenty seconds . . . brings down timber up to 6 foot in diameter quickly and easily.

FOR WHAT IT'S WORTH

Everyone will readily agree to the theory that no man is indispensable. At least he will be, in agreement if he thinks you are talking of someone other than himself. At the same time he will be equally confident that no one else could do his job as efficiently as he is doing it at the present time. This attitude is usually the result of his having done such a good job of selling himself to his boss that he has even convinced himself.

Naturally no one can step into any position and do as good a job immediately as that which was done by the man he is replacing. All of which means that the organization while not injured permanently may do some creaking for a time.

That is why it is highly important that no man in a responsible position should so organize his work as to insure his being indispensable. Yet how often one hears the remark, "I would like to take a vacation but I can't because there is just no one I can trust to do my job."

While such an executive may consider a condition as being complimentary to himself, the contrary is true. Any administrator in a position of importance should select subordinates capable of taking his place in an emergency. If he has been wise in his selection, his absence will not even be noted.

Prior to President Eisenhower's election I made the statement in this column that I felt his greatest attribute to be that of being able to select able men to assist him in his undertakings. The opposite had been the case with Truman.

My early faith in Eisenhower was substantiated during his recent illness when his subordinates carried on just the same as though the President had been among them. No one can predict what the results might have been economically as well as internationally if the nation's leader had hoarded to himself all the responsibilities in order to enhance his own prestige.

The truth is that chaos might have developed if key responsibilities had not already been delegated to reliable men. Since no leader knows what the next day holds in store, he betrays those who gave him leadership if he assumes that he will be here forever.

Last Word in Farm Machinery

Curly Lawson was first in this area to use one of those roadside vending machines. He's sold milk and eggs in one about a year now, and recommends them highly—but with reservations.

"Mine's the latest model," says Curly. "Built-in refrigeration unit—heater—an automatic sign turner-on for night. Takes any combination of coins."

"However," he warned, "those machines aren't cheap to buy . . . or operate. They run about $3500. If you're not on the main highway like I am—where lots of city people pass—you'd better stick to the old methods."

From where I sit, you have to admire Curly for his pioneering spirit. Of course, there's also plenty to be said for those who tend to stick to the old proven methods. People's ideas differ on the subject—on any subject. Like you may always drink buttermilk with your meals . . . while a glass of beer's the "automatic" choice with me.

The Fine Art of the Apothecary Has Not Been Lost

THE OLD APOTHECARY of other years was a mysterious and romantic figure. Under his magic influence, roots, herbs, and minerals were turned into pills, extracts, and plasters. The doctor's prescriptions were filled, the patient's health and comfort restored. Although much of the mystery with which he was surrounded has vanished, the fine art of the apothecary has not been lost. A visit to our prescription department will convince the most skeptical that his function is an important adjunct to modern medical practice. When you find it necessary to consult a physician, bring your prescriptions to us to be filled.
