— Sketch Book —
Everyone in Curry County should escape to the "outside world" once a year. I did just that, and was amazed at the sights one can witness. For instance, we saw sidewalks, paved streets, and some cities without parking meters.

— Sketch Book —
The road up the coast was spotty. That is to say, some spots were paved. There were signs to indicate the type of road before you, i.e. slippery, dangerous, curves, slides, falling rocks, and wash out. I was surprised to see no signs with a "NO ROAD" inscription.

— Sketch Book —
When one of the big city entertainers boasted of having played all over the world, I mentioned Brookings which is out of this world.

— Sketch Book —
When professional people, and the other kind, too, have a convention naturally they all talk shop. The newspaper publishers did likewise. I never heard so much politics in my life.

— Sketch Book —
Many of the state office-seekers were there pumping hands and smiling smiles. Some of the national hopefuls should plan on attending these state publishers convos. Everyone of them would go back home and tell his readers he rubbed elbows with Adlai or Nixon. Most of that elbow rubbing comes from riding the crowded elevators.

And, as many hometowners exclaim as they report on their trips to the outside, "Oh, it was nice to go, but it was sure nice to come over the mountains and into beautiful Brookings."

— Sketch Book —
And we just made it back in time to hear Dr. Flimsey read his poem, "Brookings by the Sea" at the Minstrel Show. Pat Gibson was the author of that classic. It appears in black print in this week's PILOT.

— Sketch Book —
On the local side of the news, we hear that Bud McCourt has finally met his match when it comes to future bowling engagements. Son, Tom, was born early Wednesday morning.

The town of Morton, Wash. now has three ambulances, according to a story in the metropolitan press, when a private ambulance company stated they would no longer function, several of the local timber operators got together and set the ambulances up to operate out of both Morton and Packwood.

GEORGE BERGER VISITS —
George, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Berger, was down from Seattle for a few days, following some two years with the Army Communications Service, in Alaska. George will be released from the service the first of April and has not yet decided just what he will do then.

WIRING IS DONE
Coquille electricians were in the Brookings-Harbor High School this week completing the wiring of the IBM clock and bell system, which was installed in the shop, music room and classroom that occupy the cafeteria area.

HAVE HOUSE-WARMING
Superintendent of Schools, and Mrs. D. D. Williams were entertained at a house-warming party Saturday night, in which about 60 people, mostly teachers and their wives (or husbands) attended, bringing their own refreshments with them.

A few citizens inquiring at the PILOT office if parking tickets issued on February 22nd, were legal, were reminded that we all hire a man who can be found at the City Hall, who will enlighten them, perhaps for a small fee.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. "Bud" McCourt, at Seaside Hospital in Crescent City, a son, Thomas Martin, who weighed in at 7 pounds and 3 ounces.

Mrs. Andrew Muth, mother of Mrs. Joseph C. Murphy arrived in Brookings Friday to spend a month or so here. She is from Neenah, Wisconsin. She drove to Merced, California with some friends, and then took a bus to Brookings.
