

Fishing Season Opens Saturday

All piscatorial residents of the State of Oregon should bear in mind that they better watch out, beginning early in the morning of April 28th, and very carefully regard anything in the way of food they may see dangled in their vicinity.

Trout less than eight inches long can afford to be a bit more careless as they have the law on their side, if that is any comfort, and the bigger guys might watch the angler. When he gets 10 fish caught he is supposed to be through for the day, and he must not have, in that lot, over five fish a foot long or longer. He should not have over 20 fish in his possession in any consecutive 7 days. These rules apply to all coastal streams and lakes. The laws of the state prohibit the use of live bait, excepting when angling for striped bass.

Need Scout Uniforms

All Boy Scout uniforms not now in use can be put to good use. That was the word from Rev. Willard Spencer, who is helping out the Boy Scout movement here. Rev. Spencer said that all types of Boy Scout uniforms, or any part thereof, would be welcomed and put to use. He asked that those who have such to drop them off at the Assembly of God Church, or let him know and he will arrange to have them picked up.

This ruling was made necessary because many good fishing bodies of water where live bait had been used became over-run with undesirable fish, thereby starving out the others.

No one should either move live fish from one body of water to another state or release any fish in private or public waters without a permit from the Oregon Game Commission.

One result of having allowed the use of bait fish and moving them was the destruction of game fish in Diamond Lake. It cost $137,295 to restore to angling.

It is a wonder, yith all the schemes devoted to women's apparel, no woman in modern times has come up with sufficient pocket space to allow discarding of their reticules and equivalent alforjas—appropriately called, by old trail riders, "bag o' gatherin'z."

There will be a county-wide meeting of the Curry Home Ec groups in the Grange Hall, on Thursday, May 3rd, beginning at 10 a.m. Ten groups of the county will meet and display their work done during the season and will cover a wide field tending toward bettering the home, economically, through various handicrafts. The meeting is open to the public, and because of its wide interest to homemakers should be well attended.

At noon there will be a lunch served by the Chetco Grange Extension Club with a charge of $1 per plate.

The program will include 4-H demonstration and Betty Jean Sedwick, from OSC, who will speak on the value of the project in the home. There is also to be a guest speaker on Civil Defense.

BROOKINGS

IN BRIEF

—by LORETTA HALLMAN

All of the state-operated colleges have invited the members of the graduating classes of Oregon to visit the college campus of their choice. During the weekend, school seniors from the Northwest are to be guests of the college to get a first-hand look at college life. They will have their meals in the college commons, and will be housed in college dormitories and living houses.

The Brookings High School Spanish class was visited by Mrs. Delores Webb last Wednesday afternoon. She showed some slides of her recent trip to Mexico and a few articles she had brought back from there.

Mrs. Caroline Goings, mother of Mrs. Hugo Mackey, has arrived in Brookings and is visiting with the Mackeys for an indefinite stay. Mrs. Goings is from Portland.

The band and girl's chorus of Brookings, directed by Mr. Dial, are going to Ashland on April 28th for a music contest. Ratings will be given on vocal and instrumental numbers.

About 450 people attended "The Importance of Being Earnest" the Junior class play, during the afternoon and evening sessions.

The play was very well done and an estimated $150 was taken in.

Joanne Renhard was elected to go to Girl's State for a week, starting June 17th, with Nancy Cummings as alternate. Candidates are chosen on basis of their scholastic standing, co-operation, leadership and reasons for wanting to attend Girl's State.

The purpose of Girl's State is to learn more about the government. State, county and local governments will be set up with the girls running for offices. The Girl's State representatives will get to meet government officials.

The candidates were: Nancy Cummings, Loretta Hallman, Barbara Guthrie, Phyllis Cole, Joan Kanick, Dian Simons, Janet Glass, Doris Shuey, Charlotte Jensen, Kay Brooks, Viola Jackson, Helen Hedberg and Joanne Renhard.

The representative is sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary.
