The primary election Friday night was certainly a lesson in democracy. I hounded the four voting precincts to get early returns. Ferrello, directed by chairman, Warren (himself) McNelly, was the first one finished. They had, of course, less votes to be tabulated than the others. Max Brainard had his crew working along in good speed, and they finished up at about 11 p.m. Brookings precinct I, and Chetco finished at 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. respectively.

Those are long hours to sit counting out these ungodly long ballots. However, the pay is good. 75c per hour—less than the new minimum wage law. I imagine that along about 4:30 a.m. that six bits an hour didn't seem like much a'tall.

The phones were buzzing too, as people were interested in seeing how the election was coming out—especially the Hall and Brimm races. Brimm showed very good strength in the South end of the county, and held up well, even carrying some north precincts. This must have been an important election, as the AP and UP kept calling to get the results. In fact they had set up an office in the back of Dimmicks store, with D. D. Williams in charge.

Sometimes I think we are on a treadmill, what with all the meetings, the printing, the writing, and hounding people, plus family life etc., but either there must be 14 Hortons, or each must have 12 hands. One day I saw Don working at the Consolidated building, having coffee, on the Leonard Building, and on the Coast Power Saw and Equipment building, all within two hours. Then I saw other Hortons building a couple of houses, working on the Menning addition, and more Hortons are to build the drive-in theatre, and Dr. Cates building. They should get scooters.

way down they stopped and visited Beulah's sister, Mrs. Dewey Oliver Jr., and family at Ft. Dick Charles Carpenter was a lucky fisherman this week at Rogue River. He caught a nice salmon and Brother Colegrove caught two.

Mrs. Ray Passley returned to Portland for more medical treatment. She expects to be gone about a month.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Colegrove had a letter from their son Gene, a corporal in the Army, that he expects to come home in July for discharge. He has been stationed in Germany for nearly two years.
