The Grand Prize of the pet parade went to Larry Kilpatrick who appeared as an organ grinder with his monkey. The prize was a 9-inch trophy cup and $25 in savings accounts and money contributed by the U. S. National Bank and the South Coast Lumber Company.

Publication of the transactions of the Del Norte County Court, each month, requires several columns, in two papers, in which all the court's proceedings is set forth in detail, naming names as required. This is quite a contrast when layed alongside the sketchy accounting of the business done by the officials of Curry County whose dollars and cents business probably exceeds that of Del Norte.

Over 800 Attend Mineral Show

Over 800 visitors viewed the beautiful displays of gems and minerals at the recent show held by the Mt. Emily Gem and Mineral Club.

The exhibits were all exceptionally good and well classified. Several outstanding cases were exhibited by members of the Del Norte Rockhounds, of Crescent City.

Much of the credit for the success of the show goes to Mr. Charles Hoffman, club president; Mrs. Hoffman and Mrs. Sue Jackson for the refreshments; Art Pierce for getting so many fine door prizes and the Goldizens for filling in everywhere as needed, and the many others who helped out.

Missed greatly were Tom and Mary Yocum, who have always taken part in Rock Club activities. Mr. Yocum passed away several days before the show in which he had planned to assist.

TREE FARMER —

Richard, 17, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Burnett, is possibly the youngest tree farmer in the state of Oregon. He has a 27 acre plot leased near Bridgeview, east of Cave Junction. Richard, a high school senior next year, set up his tree farm as a vocational project under the FHA, and it has met with approval by the Industrial Forestry Association. He expects to harvest Christmas tree, small logs and fireplace wood. Hiring some of his schoolmates to help slick up the tract it has already shown a profit in all three products and Richard expects it will be of considerable help in paying for his college course in agriculture.
