EDITORIAL what to do in Brookings ...

A tourist, visiting here for the first time on the recommendation of a friend breezes into town, and asks himself. Now, I'm here--what can I do to keep myself occupied?

First, we would suggest that the person do a little reconnoitering, to acclimate themselves with what we have in the area. We would suggest a trip along the ocean front, and then a look around our progressive city. Then he can begin making plans. They can be thus:

First day: Sightseeing. A drive back to Boseley Butte, to the Forest Ranger look-out, or up to the Upper Summer bridge, or up the Winchuck, or through the Smith River cut-off for a look at the Redwoods, or up the South Bank road. We would advise that they take along a picnic lunch, and stop off at one of the very many beautiful spots along the way.

Second day: The beach. Either at the mouth of the Chetco, Harris Beach State park, or any one of many beaches in the area. Plan on eating out in the open, and climbing the rocks, and hunting for agates, seashells, and driftwood.

Third day: Fishing. On the river for trout, or casting at the mouth for perch, or smelt, or out in the ocean for ling cod, salmon, or any of a number of varieties of fish.

Fourth day: Camping out, up the Chetco, in any one of many spots. Swimming, fishing, or just laying in the sun. But make sure that you tent out overnight under the stars, not plagued by hordes of mosquitoes.

Fifth day: Exploring. Look over such interesting places as a field of fresh lilies, a chrome mining camp, a veneer plant, or the Plywood plant, or a logging show. See Azalea State Park, and Cedar Lane cannery. Even watching the jetties being built is a treat.

Evenings you can plan any of a dozen things. How about a beach party, or bowling at Azalea Lanes, or night clubbing at the Cliff House.

Surely, we haven't run out of things to do. The few that we have mentioned above will just serve to whet the appetite of the modern traveler. Just last week end, for example, at the Chetco mouth we saw the following activities carried on within a few feet of each other. Swimming (in the river and in the ocean). Surfboard riding. Boating. Fishing (in the river and the ocean). Surf fishing. Picnicking. Drift wood and agate hunting.

We haven't said anything about clam digging, horse back riding, looking over the many varieties of wild flowers, hiking, berry picking, or hunting.

All in all, we're convinced that we are in the center of a vertiginous tourist mecca for the lovers of nature at it's finest. All a person needs is a tent, a can of beans and plenty of get-up and go, and he can spend many happy hours enjoying himself in Brookings and vicinity.

FOR WHAT IT'S WORTH

By CLIFFORD P. ROWE

I imagine that it is typical of most people that they desire to be thought of as being tolerant. Certainly no one appreciates being labeled as narrow-minded where an issue is concerned or prejudiced in the evaluation of an individual.

That is why I am so genuinely perturbed relative to my opinion of the senior senator from Oregon.

There is no other man holding public office in this nation today for whom I hold less regard; and that is what disturbs me. Why should I single out this one man, Wayne Morse, to be so bitter against when actually my greatest desire is to think highly of my fellow-man.

Of one thing I am convinced: I do not abhor him because he claims to be a Democrat and I happen to be a Republican. The very fact that I have great respect for many Democrats should be sufficient proof that my opinion of Morse does not stem from party prejudice.

I used to be rather disgusted with the carnival-like antics of Richard Neuberger; of late, though, I see signs of his family growing up as a legislator. I believe he is sincere in wishing to serve and I am confident that his experience in the nation's capital will enable him to win future votes as a result of accomplishment rather than from half-baked publicity stunts.

But as far as Wayne Morse is concerned, I have almost given up hope. Each day I pick up My paper in the hope that the senior senator has done something constructive. But each day I am doomed to disappointment, for all that he ever seems to do is to lie in wait for President Eisenhower to make a move so that he can grab the headlines from coast to coast in order to spit his venom of hate.

I would be the first to admit that the President cannot be right all of the time; but I would argue just as quickly that neither can he always be wrong. That is why I am firmly convinced that Senator Morse long ago substituted hatred for intelligence in his legislative thinking.

And that is why, I suppose, that I must go one feeling as I do. Somehow I cannot bring myself to respect a man with brains galore who chooses to use them in the role of a witch-doctor mouthing incantations as he stirs the brew.

SEVERAL SEALS SHOT

It was reported that several dead seals were found on the beach, both here and in Harbor. The seals were shot.

JEHOVAH' PLANS SET

The Crescent City Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses are making final plans to attend a five-day assembly in Seattle, Washington, July 10-14 it was announced today. In making the announcement Mr. John Kolb, the presiding Minister.

The greatest contributing factor in this broad program of Bible education furnished by the local congregation studies and the various assemblies regularly attended by the practicing Witnesses.

The Seattle gathering for Bible instruction is one of sixteen scheduled to be held in the U. S., Canada and England during July and August. In all some sixty congregation members will be represented at Seattle. The attendance is expected to be upward of 20,000. There will be representative from about 90 congregations there.

Following the Seattle convention, Mr. Kolb added, the Circuit Servant, Mr. Vernon Pearson will visit the local congregation. Mr. Pearson will be here July 16-21, as a special representative of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, and Crescent City is one of twenty congregations he serves, which are located in Southern Oregon and Northern California. He will serve the Harbor Bible Center on July 17.

PIPE DREAMS

JOE MURPHY

For weeks, because of the press of business in switching over to our new printing process, both Bud and I have slipped up on writing our columns, much to the consternations of thousands of our readers. Now by popular demand--we have returned.

Frankly, with this offset printing, we have had our head in the darkroom so much that we feel like moles coming out into the sunlight. Our new camera is about 12 feet long, and shoots a roll of film 18 inches by 22 inches. Very difficult to lug around--tossing snapping pictures.

Every in Brookings seems to be engaged in the new pastime--watching the men working on the jetty. If Tom McKenzie could only figure out a way to sell tickets he wouldn't have to pour cement all summer.

One peculiar thing about this jetty business. There are a lot of people in this town that thought it would be easier for Sommers and his crew to start out in the ocean, and then work back towards shore.

I was up in Gold Beach Wednesday, listening to the discussion on the possibility of diverting water from the Rogue for industrial use in the Valley. Naturally a good many Gold Beach people, particularly the resort owners were opposed to such a move, thinking that the salmon might have their feelings hurt by people who insisted upon dumping industrial waste into the Rogue. I don't blame one bit, because the Rogue is a nationally known stream. On the other hand, industry and progress move together, and I doubt very much, regardless of whether it is right or wrong, whether Gold Beach could stop either. Chances are that modern industry wouldn't hurt the fishing as much as the resort men think they would.

We also saw our old friend Bill Fuller in Gold Beach. Fuller ran for district attorney the last time around, and presently is a Justice of Peace, as well as an attorney. Bill got his hand caught in a power mower last week and lost the first two joints of all his fingers. Bill ought to get them to pass a law against things like that.

I see by the Pilot that Ralph Menning won a free trip to the beautiful Hawaiian Island through the simple expediency of selling cars. There is one guy I can't imagine in a hula skirt. I'm just envious I guess because nobody gives us any trips for selling newspapers.

VISITS

Clyde Wood, noted artist of Los Angeles, was spending this week visiting his sister in Brookings.

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL

The Vacation Bible School being conducted by the Church of Christ will come to a close on Friday of this week.

The students and their leaders will enjoy a picnic together in Azalea State Park during the noon hour Friday following the last session of the school.

The closing program will be presented at the Bible School hour, 10 a. m. this Sunday morning.

Parents of the boys and girls are especially invited.

The minister will speak this Sunday on the following themes: "A little Man with a Big Idea", during the morning worship service which begins at 10:00, and "Three Philosophies of Life", during the 7:30 p. m. service.

The first of the summer camps will begin next Monday morning. Anyone desiring information about these camps should call Mr. Cays, Phone 2535.
