TRACES CARTOON TO HOLLAND

Charles Dana Gibson Says This Form of Art Originated There in 1688.

In the modern sense, the cartoon originated in Holland, stimulated by the revolution of 1688, says Charles Dana Gibson in the Mentor. From there it migrated to England and there found fertile and congenial soil. The most significant cartoons of the eighteenth century were directed against the "bubble mania," the speculative madness engineered by the South Sea company in London. Cartoons such as the famous one picturing fortune riding in a car driven by folly, were displayed in London shop windows and influenced the art of Hogarth, who is accepted as the father of the modern cartoon. Following Hogarth came Rowlandson, who devoted himself to social satire, and James Gillray, who stirred public opinion against Napoleon.

Benjamin Franklin was the first American cartoonist. His work was crude; still it inspired the colonists. His most famous cartoon was that of a snake cut up into sections and named after the thirteen colonies. Under this cartoon were the words "Unite or Die." America's first great cartoonist, Thomas Nast, was the product of the Civil war and for years afterward he continued to influence public opinion. It was Nast who finally drove Boss Tweed out of New York. Another great cartoonist of that period was Tenniel, who drew the reverent and splendid "The Nation Mourning at Lincoln's Bier," printed in Punch just after the death of the martyred president.

Following Nast came Keppler, Victor and Gilliam, Rogers, Walker and Clifford, followed by men who have given the American cartoon a permanent place in our national history.

The Way of Fate.

"Even when a man gets elected to office he's liable to complain of his lot."

"It's a way fate has," said Senator Sorghum. "When a man gets what he wants it's liable to be handed to him with trimmings that will make him wish he hadn't wanted it."

Queer Probation Suit in India.

Twin babies of unequal size are the starting point of a unique probation suit. A rich Indian merchant, Devkaran Nanji, died leaving his fortune to his male children, of which he had several by his first wife. His second wife, a young Indian woman of thirty, gave birth to twins soon after her bereavement, while traveling in a train from Bombay to Baroda. It was given out that the twins were a boy and a girl, and the widow immediately entered a claim for a share of the fortune on behalf of her son. The apparent difference in the ages of the children, however, aroused suspicion among the other heirs, and it is now alleged that the woman exchanged one of the twins, both of which were girls, for a boy baby from a foundling asylum. The case is in the courts.

World's Onion Seed.

In Santa Clara valley, Cal., on the lowlands the world's onion seeds are produced. The seed is not, of course, employed for edible purposes, inasmuch as they are allowed to grow until they are far too "old" for such use. Nearly 20,000 acres of land are used in the culture of the product. It is reported that one cultivator has under way a process whereby the stalks can be made into paper, much as wood-pulp has been for many years. About 2,000 flat-carloads of stalks are turned out each year.

The Victim.

"Yes, my husband's laid up, a victim of football."

"But I didn't know he ever played the game."

"He doesn't. He sprained his larynx at the match last Saturday!"—The Passing Show (London).

The Snowshoe Glide.

"Are you from the Far North?"

"No, why do you ask?"

"You dance as if you had snowshoes on."—Dartmouth Jack o' Lantern.

WILLAMINA, ORE

Old Iron Mines Closed.

The oldest iron mines in the United States, located at Sterlington, N. Y., have been closed. They have been in continuous operation since 1760, and ore taken from them was used to forge the famous chain that was stretched across the Hudson river in the Revolutionary war to prevent the British ships from ascending the stream. Iron for every war in which the United States ever fought has come from these mines.

Shades of Meaning.

"When a man refuses to take a tip you say he lacks vision."

"Yes."

"And if he takes it and loses?"

"Then we say he lacked foresight."

No Doubt of It.

"Well, Vera, I must say I don't think it's fair to your husband to run up so many bills."

"My dear, to do his best work he needs a strong incentive."—Life.
