The KITCHEN CABINET

There is no broken reed so poor and base,
No rush the bending tilt of swamp-fly blue
But He therewith the ravening wolf can chase
And guide His flock to springs and pastures new;
Through ways unlooked for and through many lands,
Far from the rich folds built with human hands,
The gracious footprints of His love I trace.

OYSTER COOKERY

The favorite shellfish are so easily digested, nutritious and flavorful, especially when eaten raw. When cooked they should never be heated to a high temperature as that makes them tough and indigestible. When preparing oysters for serving, each one should be run through the fingers, using extreme care to remove every particle of shell. Place in a wire strainer, pour cold water through them and they are then ready to serve in any manner.

Oyster Delight.—Wash and cook for twenty minutes in boiling water two dozen fresh shrimp—shell and remove the viscera. Wash two dozen large oysters, cook slowly in their own juice until the edges curl. Carefully clean a small can of crab meat. Combine one-half of a chopped green pepper with six sliced mushrooms and fry in two tablespoonfuls of fat. Prepare a white sauce with two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour, add one pint of cream, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful each of pepper and paprika and one-half of a pimiento chopped fine. Now add two cupfuls of diced white meat of chicken, the oysters, shrimp, crab meat mushrooms and green and red pepper, mixing lightly with a fork. Heat thoroughly and serve on small slices of toast. This quantity will serve ten to twelve persons.

Oysters in Golden Sauce.—Simmer one pint of oysters in two tablespoonfuls of butter until plump and the edges curl. Add one teaspoonful of salt, a few grains of cayenne, one-fourth teaspoonful of nutmeg and two beaten egg yolks with one-fourth cupful of cream. Just before serving add one teaspoonful of lemon juice, stirring rapidly. Serve on toast or crackers, garnished with parsley.

No Return Gifts

No Christmas giving, however lavish, is truly generous unless it includes some from whom there can be no return of gifts.

Christmas in Spain

In Spain the Bethlehem manger scene is a necessary feature of the keeping of Christmas.
