Iris, Other Bulbs for Fine Blossoms

The vogue of the iris in the garden calls attention to the type of this beautiful plant best suited for cutting, the spanish iris and its relatives, the dutch irises. The later are magnificent greenhouse material but not hardy. They closely resemble the spanish iris in form but are larger and longer stemmed.

The spanish iris is perfectly hardy but requires a warm, well-drained soil for success. It is a bulb entirely different in character from the roots of other garden irises.

Another bulbous iris even more pretentious in its beauty than the slender, graceful spanish iris is the english iris, resembling a small japanese iris in form and coloring. It needs moist, heavy soil and the spanish and english are seldom happy in the same garden unless special conditions in heavy soil are created for the spanish type. Both bloom later than the tall, bearded class. The spanish with its very thin foliage has not so much decorative value in the garden as other irises but its long stem makes it ideal cut flower material and unlike its kin which grow from rhizomes, rather than bulbs, the flower lasts well when cut. These bulbous irises are under the ban of the plant quarantine board and cannot be imported. Formerly they were so cheap that it made little difference whether they survived more than one year or not. Now they are more expensive and the supply comes from the Pacific coast. Spanish irises raised in the Pacific Northwest have proved even finer than those we formerly imported in great quantities from Holland. They are well worth a sunny spot in some convenient corner of the garden for cutting material, and for garden decoration.

tion should be provided with a foreground of low growing attractive foliage of some other plant.

In the squills and grape hyacinths we have materials for the finest sheets of intense blue in the early spring that give character to the garden before the hardy plants have more than a brief start into growth. The siberian squill, scilla siberica, is now used in great quantities all over the garden. It is a companion of the crocuses and of a rich intense blue that has no rival at its season. This little squill once started in a garden will seed itself and in a few years will establish large colonies.

It is a useful little bulb to scatter all over the garden, dibbling in a few bulbs wherever a space presents itself among the perennials. It can be dropped into the open center of iris clumps, around the crown of peonies, between clumps of delphiniums, in fact any little space will accommodate these little bulbs which will give a sheet of blue in the first warm days of April. Other plants springing into growth will cover the dying foliage of this bulb which matures early.

A little later and of larger growth is the grape hyacinth, muscari boytorides, and its more beautiful relative, heavenly blue, muscari racemosum. The latter is displacing the old grape hyacinth because of its more substantial stalks of intense blue "grapes" and because its foliage is not so rank. The old-fashioned grape hyacinth makes dense patches of blue and multiplies so rapidly that it often becomes almost a pest. It makes beautiful pots of bloom for the window. Plant a half dozen or a dozen bulbs in a bulb pan, a pot of half depth, set in a cold frame or merely leave it outside until wanted indoors. Bring it in, thaw it out gently and set in a window and the grape hyacinths will pop up and give a beautiful display.

are unfriendly and would prefer an other President in the White House.

Senator Capper's editorial describes the President accurately as a man "who does not act first and reflect afterwards."

In an emergency he acts instantaneously, as in the Wall Street crash But his method is to "look into the facts first."

Dr. Ditmars, who studies animals from elephant and whale to ant and microbe, will broadcast, by greatly magnifying sound, noises made by ants in their colonies working, celebrating, etc.

Strange is insect life. Among katydids there are twenty males for every female. This will interest women, for the katydid is one of the noisiest of insects. The males make all that racket.

"Ants," says Dr. Ditmars, "sometimes make fools of themselves."

Tiny mites and blind, little defenceless beetles, pat the ants with their feet and then the ants pat them.

Not so different from human beings that have money. Sycophants flatter them, "pat them" with compliments, then they feed the sycophants, and sometimes let them marry their daughters.

Chicago police hold seven men and one lady, accused of conspiring to kidnap citizens, torturing them to extort money.

Theodore Kopelman, head of an insurance company, identified the kidnapers. The lady, his former wife, had "tipped" the kidnapers that if they got him, "he would be easy."

He obeyed orders, and paid when threatened with red hot irons.

Police investigators attribute six other "torture kidnaping" cases to the same gang, and the prosecuting attorney says he will have them all sent to the electric chair. Death is the punishment for kidnaping in Illinois.

That seems a little severe, and capital punishment is barbarous.

Kidnaping, with torture, is also barbarous.
