OREGON MANUFACTURING

sometimes "it's processing"

Second OF THE BIG 4 ENTERPRISES

that are making Oregon

After harvesting, comes many processing enterprises that create jobs

Oregon is a good place to make things

IN this new, rich country nature lavishly produced furs, fish, and forests. From them have been built fortunes. This was in the pioneering stage. Now we discover manufacturing as a primary source of jobs and profits. No longer are we satisfied to produce merely the raw materials and ship them away. We are beginning to learn of the enormous commercial possibilities of developing our products to their highest form of usefulness. By taking our raw products from farms, forests, mines, oceans and streams and making them into finished products ready for consumption, we find that the wealth added by manufacture often exceeds the values of the raw products as primarily produced.

With its marvelous climate and its abundant low cost electric power, Oregon is undergoing a development in manufacturing which will do much to build a new measure of added prosperity. As in the past, Oregon's industry is developing with the help of pioneering electric utility companies. Let us look to manufacturing as one of the great new "fronts" in the Pacific Northwest's future.
