Maurice D. Dade, son of Lester R. Dade of Cheshire, successfully has completed his single-engine fighter pilot training at the army air forces advanced flying school, Luke Field, Arizona. At graduation ceremonies recently he received the air corps silver wings and was commissioned a second lieutenant.

Maurice received his pilot training at various fields in the AAF western flying training command, including Santa Ana, Blythe and Merced, California.

Before his appointment as an aviation cadet, he attended Junction City high school and Pasadena Junior college. He was active in basketball both in high school and college. During his military career he also has been stationed at Sheppard Field, Texas and La Grande, Oregon. He now is awaiting final specialized training and assignment.
