

Wayne worked as a chainman and assistant office man for the Highway Department and is the son of B. E. Dugan of the Parks Department.

Edwin Badley, CMM, entered the Navy in June, 1942, and received his boot training at San Diego. He served on a sub-chaser in the Atlantic until March, 1944, when he sailed through the Panama Canal into the Pacific where he was put on an L.C.I. Now he is on another L.C.I. which took part in the invasion of Iwa Jima. On Easter Sunday he was promoted to Chief Machinist Mate. Edwin was last home in June, 1944.

T/Sgt. Owen Badley, commonly known to his friends as "Duke" enlisted in the Army Air Corps on December 11, 1941 as a mechanic, and after 14 months training was sent overseas. He is with the 12th Air Force which has received two Presidential Citations for its work in Africa, Sicily and Italy. Duke is crew chief on a B-25. He has been home only once since going into the service.

We believe John Day Chapter can beat any other in number of one employee's relatives in service. Harper C. Gowan, light truck driver for Norman Cox, John Day Section Foreman, has six grandsons, six nephews and three grand nephews in service and a son has passed his physical and expects to be called soon while a son-in-law has been called for examination and has not returned yet so we do not know his status. Seven of the 15 in service are stationed in the U.S. and eight are scattered almost all over the world. Some on land and some on the sea.

Clyde C. Macy, until May 1, employed as bridgeman in the crew at John Day, has three sons and a daughter in service. The oldest son, John Macy, was a painter on the State Highway Bridge at Nehalem Bay, when called to Camp Lewis with the Baker National Guard. He has been 31 months overseas with MacArthur's Army and has taken part in every invasion made by that army. All but for three short periods, he has seen continuous service. He was wounded once, had tropical fever and was in Australia a short time resting. He was in the fight the last we heard from him. He is a member of the Bushmaster's Rifle Battalion.
